Corroborates American's Expose of Blackmail Ring; $61,000 Shakedown

After a lapse of almost a year there comes verification of the Boston American's publication of the real story of the trapping of Albert Victor Searles, wealthy Boston artist, which resulted in the paying of $50,000 to William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex County.

The shakedown of Searles was one of the most carefully planned of a long series of frame-ups worked on well-known Bostonians. The heroine of the Searles trimming was Mrs. Blanche L. Paul, who disappeared promptly after the American expose, printed on September 30, 1921.

Today Blanche, pawn of the ring which bilked the rich artist and others, turned up under an assumed name.

In an interview, in which she relates her connections with the swindling of Searles, Mrs. Paul, twenty-four-year-old divorcee, corroborates, almost word for word, the account

"I WAS A PAWN," SAYS ONE

It was Eleanor Barnes (large picture) who, according to Mrs. Blanche L. Paul (inset) introduced her to the "extortion gang" in the luring and fleecing of wealthy "Vic" Searles, Boston artist. Eleanor also was known under other names.

TURKEY WARNS ALLIED CHIEFS

Constantinople (By Associated Press).—The Turkish Nationalists have notified the allied high command they will not tolerate the fortification of certain points in the so-called neutral zones along the Dardanelles, and that continuance of the work of fortification will be looked upon as warranting military action.

PAY POLICE DOCTOR'S BILLS AND GO FREE

Rogers Goodale and Allen Joyce, in court today, were arrested following a celebration at No. 406 Massachusetts avenue. When Patrolmen Yates and Banks called to see about the revel they were greeted by a shower of wedding presents, which were thrown at them. Some of the presents were rather bulky, such as chairs, vases and the like.

Judge Lowrie sentenced Goodale and Joyce to six months in the workhouse. He offered to suspend the sentence if they would pay the doctor's bills of the two patrolmen. This the guests agreed to do.

TRIES TO HANG SELF IN CELL

Morgan, Negro Janitor of Brookline, Who Killed Dr. Reynolds, Rescued by Jailer

Turnkey Martin Burrett, making the rounds at the Dedham Jail today, stopped at the cell occupied by William Morgan, negro janitor of Brookline, charged with the murder of Dr. Henry V. Reynolds and the shooting of three others.

Morgan was reading the Bible and muttering under his breath.

A few minutes later the prisoner occupying the adjoining cell heard Morgan say:

"Lord, I'm coming right to you, and may you have mercy on my soul!"

He heard suspicious sounds, and called for help.

SWINGING FROM BAR.

Turnkey Burrett and an assistant, Amos J. Loring, rushed to Morgan's cell. They found him swinging from the bar at the top of the jail door, suspended by a bed sheet which he had fashioned into a sort of rope.

They cut him down and he fell to the floor in a heap.

Then they noticed blood on his throat and on his left wrist. The jail physicians were summoned and they worked over Morgan. When he came to he bemoaned the fact that his plans "to meet the Lord" has been interfered with.

CUT SELF WITH GLASS.

It was learned that prior to his attempt to hang himself he had broken a mirror and with a jagged section of it tried to sever the arteries of his neck and wrist. Apparently he had not had the nerve to go through with it.

He was able to go back to his cell after his wounds were treated, but a guard was placed there to see that he did not try to kill himself.

It was bootleg gin that caused the death of Dr. Reynolds and the wounding of Traffic Officer Aleck Johnson, Bart J. Connolly, owner of the apartment building in which Morgan was employed and Thomas A. McLoughlin, a laborer who happened to be passing by at the time. This was a week ago.

130 Killed by Bolt in Fort in Italy

Milan, Sept. 28 (By International News Service).—One hundred and thirty persons were reported killed and 600 wounded in the blowing up of the Falconara fortress near Spezia today.

Spezia, Sept. 28 (By the Associated Press).—The entire naval garrison at Falconara Fort, near here on the Gulf of Genoa, is believed to have been killed in an explosion, caused by lightning, which caused great destruction within a radius of ten miles. There are many hundreds of wounded.

Seventy bodies have already been recovered in the debris. Fifteen hundred tons of explosives were stored in the deep tunnels of the fort. The entire top of the hill on which it is located was blown away.

The work of recovering additional dead is progressing. No estimate has as yet been made of their number.

The explosion occurred in a violent storm, which damaged the crops and property of the inhabitants for large areas along the gulf. Half-crazed with terror from fire and storm, the despairing population is being relieved through governmental care.

FITZ CALLS ON PHELAN TO RESIGN

Charges Massachusetts Fuel Head Is Interested in Soft Coal Company

John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic candidate for Governor, today demanded the resignation of James J. Phelan, State Fuel Administrator. He charged that Mr. Phelan's interest in the United States Fuel Company renders him incompetent to conduct the office in the interests of the people.

Mr. Fitzgerald spoke at the Barre fair. He said:

"At least 75 per cent. of the people are without fuel for the Winter. Yet what do we find the Governor of Massachusetts doing in this emergency?

"He appoints the man as head of the fuel administration, Mr. James J. Phelan, who is a director in the United States Smelting Company, which controls the United States Fuel Company, which annually markets a large amount of soft coal. Soft coal, not anthracite!

"Since being in this position Mr. Phelan has very frequently advised people to buy soft coal without delay and so the prices are the highest in the history of the trade.

CRITICISES PHELAN.

"Mr. Phelan ought to know that the best coal brains in the country say there is bound to be a drop in prices. Yet he advises the purchasing of coal at the highest prices.

"I do not accuse Mr. Phelan of consciously doing this for a personal profit to himself, but nevertheless, the records of the company up to August 1 show an increase of 50 per cent. in soft coal production. If Mr. Phelan and others can have their way in getting the public to use soft coal it will mean a tremendous profit for the United States Fuel Company.

"Governor Cox should ask Mr. Phelan to resign at once."

James J. Phelan, State Fuel Administrator, admitted that he is a director in the American Smelting Company and that the company owns coal mines in Utah. He also said that none of the coal from those mines is sold in Massachusetts.

Mr. Phelan, during the day, reiterated his advocacy of buying soft coal. He took issue with Henry Ford and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

"I hope Mr. Ford and Mr. Lewis are correct," said Mr. Phelan, "but I believe they are incorrect in stat-

'VAMP' TELLS HOW ARTIST SEARLES WAS TRAPPED

FAT GIRL AS BAIT.

Of the total of $61,000 wrung from Searles, Mrs. Paul got only $70. Searles had a fondness for plump women. Mrs. Paul was pleasingly rotund. Hence her selection as bait for the artist, who had been selected for his eccentricities and the fact that he had inherited a large fortune from his wealthy recluse uncle.

It was a chance meeting with Eleanor Barnes, alias Marion Saunders, alias many other names, that brought Mrs. Paul into the blackmail gang.

Telling her story, she says:

"I was doing all sorts of odd jobs, many of them menial ones, at the time I met Marion Saunders in the United States Hotel. I had to, because my husband had been treating me so brutally that I was forced to leave him. It was while I was working as a laundress in the United States Hotel that Eleanor came there to work.

"One day the girl known as Eleanor Barnes, but who was known to me as Marion Saunders, came to work at the hotel. She was assigned to room with me. She was responsible for my downfall and anything which I did was due to her.

"She had a friend in a Court street lawyer's office whom she went up to see often. One night she asked me to go out on a party. I went. I met the lawyer and a gentleman friend of his and we went to the Tavern Afterwards I went out on parties with them.

LIKED FAT GIRLS.

"One night Marion came home and told me she met an artist who was dying to meet a girl like me. She said his name was Searles and that he liked fat girls. Marion said she did not like Searles, who had an apartment on West Newton street.

"She wanted me to meet Searles and one night I met him. Why he took a liking to me I don't know but he became an awful pest.

"OFFERED" A DIVORCE.

"After his uncle had been dead for a little while, Marion told me that her Court street lawyer friend wanted to see me. I went up to his office with her. She went into his partner's room and the senior lawyer asked me into his private office.

"He asked me how I would like a divorce and the custody of my two children. He said my husband was going around with a girl and that if I wanted a divorce he would have him watched. I knew that he had been around Canobie Lake with a girl and that he had been with other women.

"The lawyer wanted to know if I wanted my husband sent away. I told him that I did not, but that I would like my children. Then he told me to see his partner and he would fix up things.

"I went into his partner's office and he wanted a picture of my husband and he told me that they would catch my husband with another woman and start divorce proceedings.

"Then he asked me if I would help them to catch Searles. They said that if I did what they wanted me to do, they would give me $500. They knew from Marion of my relations with Searles. I agreed to do as they wished because I was to get a divorce, my children and $500.

IT WAS HER BIRTHDAY.

"The lawyer explained to me I was to get Vic in a room and that both of us were to be undressed. He said I would give a signal, that men would break into the room, that they would get kind of rough but that I was not to be frightened.

"They told me how easily I could handle Searles. Some days after the lawyer gave Marion money with which to hire an apartment. We went up to No. 309 Huntington avenue, but she got bashful and couldn't talk and I did the hiring of the apartment. We fixed it up so that it looked nice. Marion bought fruit, candy and other things and she got a quart of whiskey.

"Then Marion called Searles on the phone, told him it was my birthday and that I was giving a party and wanted him to come up. He said that he couldn't come, that he was too busy, but that he'd send his chum, Captain Austin. We met the old captain on the street, talked with him and he phoned to Vic and insisted that he come to the party.

SIGNAL FROM WINDOW.

"There were two rooms in the apartment. I took Vic into the bedroom, where we undressed. Then I went into the bathroom, hung a sheet out of the window, the signal I was supposed to give, unlocked the door leading from the hall to the apartment and returned to Searles. When the detectives, four of them, walked in, they talked with Vic.

"They told him they were sent by my husband and ordered him to go down to Lawyer William J. Corcoran's office right away. At this time Marion and Captain Austin were in the other room. My husband was not there and I don't believe he knew anything about it.

"Searles and Austin went out with the detectives. Then the lawyer and his friend came in. They told us not to let anybody into the apartment, but to dress and go back to our room. Before we got out Vic came back. We let Austin and him in. Vic told me everything was all right, that he had given Corcoran a check for $50,000.

"We left the apartment together. I got $70 from Marion. That was all the money I ever got. I know that the Court street lawyer and the gang got $11,000 more from Vic, making $61,000 in all.

"They never bothered me again until one day one of the lawyers telephoned to Marion and told her to get ready to pack our bags and get out of Boston that afternoon. He said that there was trouble but I never knew what kind of trouble.

"The lawyer and his friend called for us with an automobile and drove us to Reading, where they put us on a train for Derry, N. H. We stayed there two weeks. The lawyer came up to see us. He sent Marion to the Y. W. C. A. in Cambridge and sent me to the Y. W. C. A. in Manchester. He thought we could not be found if we roomed in such places.

"A little later Marion saw the papers and she was told that we'd have to get away quick. I went to Salem, N. H., where I met Marion and her lawyer friend and we drove to Concord, N. H., where we stayed all Summer. Then we were sent to Worcester and given tickets to Detroit.

"We stayed there two or three months. Marion got money every week. I never got a cent except what she gave me. Some weeks I'd get $10, another time I got $15, but I had to take what she'd give me.

"We left Detroit and came to Hartford, where we had a fight. I went to work in the Old Men's Home in Hartford. We'd seen Boston papers in Detroit, in which the story of the troubles of the lawyers over the Searles matter was printed, but while we knew that detectives were looking for us, they never knew where we were.

The King of Greece takes a hint, and is out. A good thing for the Greeks, not a bad thing for him. His family married all the fortune of the American tin-plate king, and can probably live comfortably here. For the Greeks it is to be hoped that they will have their nation run by one of their real men and not hunt around for another "royal" mongrel. Just now they are enjoying a revolution.

England, Europe's common sense, now favors bringing Russia into the latest "peace parley." Of all the mistakes made by the Allies, creating little countries unable to stand on their feet, crushing or trying to crush big countries, that are the natural and necessary growth of time, the greatest mistake was the effort to ignore Russia and boycott her for daring to choose her own government.

England has recovered from that foolishness. Perhaps the United States will do the same after awhile.

If feeble Turkey, coming back in fighting mood, scares Europe into a fainting fit, what will the Russian bear do in his turn?

Senator Freylinghuysen, intimate friend of President Harding, wins overwhelmingly against Mr. Record in the New Jersey primaries. This doesn't mean exactly what it seems to mean. It is no secret that ingenious Frank Hague, Mayor of Jersey City, and Democratic shah of New Jersey, arranged long ago for his friends to vote at the Republican primaries for Senator Freylinghuysen. He preferred Freylinghuysen to Record as the man to run against his candidate, Governor Edwards.

Our friends in Japan who have adopted high finance, with other western modern improvements, are still shivering over the failure of their distinguished citizen, Ishii. That gentleman, who began as a humble laborer, hauling a lumber cart with his own muscles, piled up forty million dollars, then failed, owing thirty millions to various banks.

Mr. Ishii seems to have improved on all the known American methods of financing, starting from nothing and investing seventy-seven millions in one single stock. No wonder the Japanese ask, "Whither are we drifting financially?"

Mr. Dorgan, the artist, better known as Tad, in the course of his archaeological studies, discovers that Michael Angelo was paid $32 a month for his work as an artist; Leonardo Di Vinci the same, and Raphael $25. Tad, who with his artistic income could easily have hired twenty Michael Angelos for chauffeurs and valets without missing the money, concludes wisely that those great artists worked as a hen lays eggs—because they wanted to.

Stocks are weak, as you discover when you turn to the page about money. But not all stocks. Standard Oil, that fierce "monster" disintegrated, chopped up and squashed by government action, cut into many little pieces, is recording all kinds of new high prices. Cutting up a trust seems to produce results, like pruning an orchard—more fruit.

Strange things have value. One of the richest Rothschilds collected fleas in the interest of science, paying big prices for strange varieties. He had them from roaring animals of the equator, and from the Arctic fox.

For a long time a thriving business has been the selling of "sucker lists." Names on the

ESCAPES FROM TRIO WITH BAG

Men Flee Pascoag, R. I., in Auto After Binding Three Girls to Chairs

Pascoag, R. I., Sept. 28. — Three bandits entered the office of the Premier Worsted Mill here today, bound two stenographers to their chairs, robbed the safe of a small sum and waylaid Paymaster Fred Bailey when he returned with the week's payroll.

They beat him to the floor and attempted to grab his bag. Miss Elizabeth Shields, a clerk, seized the bag and escaped across the street.

The bandits fled to an auto near the mill gate and escaped. Police squads from surrounding towns scoured the roads for the machine.

The payroll saved by Miss Shields' prompt action totals several thousand dollars. Telephone wires to the mill were cut and it was some time before the alarm could be spread

Some distance out of town the men divided, using a second car, which was hidden in the bushes.

Town Sergeant Frank Genareau followed the first car into Webster, Mass., where he overhauled and arrested the driver, who said he was John Condello of No. 1 Hall street place, Boston. A revolver was found in his pocket. He denied taking part in the robbery.

BEGGAR HAD AUTO AND A CHAUFFEUR

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 28.—When Earl Stewart, a legless man, forfeited a $5 deposit today by failing to appear in court to answer a charge of street begging, the police discovered that he owned a motorcar and had his own chauffeur. When he was arrested he gave his address as Newark, N. J., and startled the police by asking them to notify his wife, a guest at one of the leading hotels here.

LIMITS RUM SEARCH IN THREE-MILE ZONE

Washington, Sept. 28.—Both the customs service and the prohibition unit have been instructed by Secretary Mellon to limit the search of liquor ships to vessels within the three-mile limit except where there is contact with shore by means of the ship's own boats, it was said today at the Treasury. Regulations covering the administration's policy of not molesting suspected foreign vessels beyond the three-mile limit still are to be prepared.

BRESLIN CHARGES BALLOTS LOST

John J. Breslin of Charlestown, defeated for the House nomination in Ward 4, today testified that he and four of his relatives voted "bullets" for himself at the State primaries but when the ballots were recounted only three ballots were found with the cross opposite his name alone. He asked the Ballot Law Commission to order a new election.

PLUCKY MOTHER AND HER CHILDREN

MRS. DORIS WILCOX AND CHILDREN

The plucky little mother, who, deserted by her husband in North Carolina, walked with her two babies in her arms to Chelsea, has forgiven her husband, who is now working in Boston.

PLEADS GUILTY OF KILLING PLAKIAS

Nicholas D. Macheras, twenty-nine, of No. 26 Kneeland street, Boston, on trial in Dedham Superior Court for murder in the second degree, today changed his plea to guilty of manslaughter.

Judge Brown sentenced him to not less than twelve nor more than fifteen years in prison.

On February 13, Macheras, a dishwasher in the employ of Thomas D. Plakias, owner of a chain of restaurants in Greater Boston, stabbed Plakias to death with a long knife, after Plakias had criticised his technique as a dishwasher.

QUADRUPLETS DIE, MOTHER SURVIVES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 28.—Mrs. Mary Krikoran, an Armenian, wife of Hagop Krikoran of Braddock, near here, last night gave birth to quadruplets, all girls, but the babies died, one at the Krikoran home and the others at the Braddock General Hospital. All the babies were perfectly formed and weighed an aggregate of nineteen pounds. Mrs. Krikoran, twenty-two years old, weighs 125 pounds and today is reported doing nicely at her home.

TAKES HUSBAND BACK FOR THIRD TIME

Mrs. Doris Wilcox, plucky Chelsea woman who, when deserted by her husband for the third time, walked home from Henderson, N. C., with her two babies in her arms, is again in difficulty.

She has forgiven her husband and he is at work in Boston, but the family income is not great. Yesterday she went to the grocery store.

"No credit," said the storekeeper.

A garage man came to her aid.

"This woman has made a courageous fight," he said. "I will stand behind her for a few dollars."

Mrs. Wilcox said she must move away from her aunt, Mrs. Belle Holmes, of No. 8 Crescent avenue, Chelsea, where the Wilcox family has been living.

SICK, DESPONDENT, MAN TRIES SUICIDE

Despondent because of ill health, Edward J. O'Brien, thirty-four years old, attempted suicide in his room at the Atlantic House, No. 13 Cambridge street, West End, today. When discovered he was lying unconscious on the bed and gas was escaping from an open jet. The crevices of the door and windows were stuffed with clothing and newspapers. He was removed to the Relief Hospital.

NIPS PLOT FOR JAIL DELIVERY

Deer Island Master Tells of Escape Set for Next Saturday

Master Malloy of Deer Island today in the East Boston Court said he had nipped a plot for a general jail delivery which was planned to take place Saturday.

The statement was made during the hearing of Charles W. Warner and Fred H. Randall, escaped prisoners who had been recaptured, when Judge Barnes criticized the management at Deer Island and said there was no excuse for prisoners escaping.

Warner and Randall startled the spectators by describing their escape September 18.

Warner said he and Randalll were working in the tailor shop and did not like it. Master Malloy refused to change their work.

SECURE TOOLS.

Warner secured a chisel and a screwdriver from the workshop. Randall, one night after supper, managed to smuggle out of the dining room a long bladed knife. He also secured a chisel from the workshop.

With the chisel they made a saw of the long knife. They worked on the bars of their cell every spare moment for a week.

Finally, at 3 a. m., September 15, the bars gave way. The two prisoners got out their cell and walked down two flights of stairs.

By means of a fire rope, they lowered themselves to the ground, and made for the Deer Island Gut.

Officer George Nelson saw them and fired five shots into the air. The two then made for the cornfield

ONE SURRENDERS.

It was very cold and damp there. Randall could not stand it. He gave himself up.

Warner watched his chance and made for the shore. He found a skiff and rowed to Long Island. Later he chased a Winthrop narrow gauge train down the track and boarded it, followed by officers who had pursued in a steam launch, but jumped off when he found an officer on the train. He was finally caught and brought back.

Today Judge Barnes gave each an additional year to serve. They appealed.

NEW MIND TEST FOR MURPHY

Alienists to Examine for Third Time Man Who Confessed Slayings

A committee of alienists will examine Jesse Murphy to see if his mental condition is such as to permit immediate trial.

Judge John F. Brown of the Superior Criminal Court today named to this commission Dr. Armin Kline, head of the State Department of Mental Diseases; Dr. George E. May, superintendent of the Boston State Hospital; Dr. A. Meyerson of the Psychopathic Hospital and Dr. Charles B. Sullivan.

The appointments were made on recommendation of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien.

Murphy confessed several times to the murder of Ordway R. Hall and Edward P. Foley, Atlantic & Pacific store managers.

George and Charles Rollins, brothers, were convicted of the two crimes. One was sentenced to death and the other to life imprisonment.

Murphy has been examined as to his sanity twice and both times was declared sane.

District Attorney O'Brien said: "This action is not a result of any recent happenings at the jail. I wanted it done so that I might know his exact condition at this time and to prevent any question being raised as to his mental responsibility before moving for trial."

GIRL SLAYER GETS 10 YEARS IN SING SING

New York, Sept. 28.—The aftermath of a killing caused directly by the quality of imitation whiskey now generally obtainable occurred in the Court of General Sessions today when a man was sent to Sing Sing for from ten to twenty years. Leo Durnherr, son of a banker of Rochester, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter, following an indictment for the murder of his sweetheart, Dorothy Dower, at the Hotel Francis, was sent to Sing Sing. He claimed he was out of his senses after drinking bad whiskey the night he killed the young woman—by beating her with an alarm clock.

NEGRO LYNCHED FOR ASSAULT IN GEORGIA

Saundersville, Ga. Sept. 28 (By International News Service).—Jim Johnson, a negro, was lynched near here today for assaulting a white woman. The negro was being taken from Sandersville to Wrightsville for trial when the automobile bearing him and officers was stopped and Johnson taken from the car by a mob. The officers were disarmed and Johnson taken to a bridge where he was hanged.

BISHOP BROWN ASKS FOR A MENTAL TEST

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 28.—Bishop William Montgomery Brown, now of Galion, O., and formerly bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Arkansas, has addressed a letter to the house of bishops, offering to have his mental condition passed on by a board of examiners, including the professors of psychology at Yale, Columbia and Johns Hopkins universities. Bishop Brown's expulsion from the house of bishops was attempted on the grounds of heresy, but he escaped trial because of his alleged mental condition.

CHARGES FRAUD IN LICENSE TO STORE OIL

Charges that the Tide Water Coal Company obtained a license by fraud and that 6,000 barrels of inflammable oil have been stored at the South Boston plant in violation of the law were made today by Attorney Robert E. Bigney, president of the South Boston Trade Association, to Colonel Alfred E. Foote, State Commissioner of Public Safety.

A license to store inflammables was granted by the Boston Street Commissioners to the Meisel Press Manufacturing Company, which later transferred the license to the Tide Water Oil Company.

Mr. Bigney appealed to State Fire Marshal George C. Neal, who confirmed the grant made by the Street Commissioners. He appealed again today to Commissioner Foote.

"The Tide Water Oil Company had been refused a location in other parts of Boston," said Mr. Bigney. "It was a case of fraud and deception for it to obtain the license from the Meisel Company, which was never in the oil business primarily.

"Marshal Neal granted the license on August 29, but the company had begun the storage of oil before that date, in violation of the law."

Mrs. B. Joy, who lives near the plant, declared the nearby residents fear danger and may be obliged to move if the license is granted.

General Edward L. Logan, counsel for the company, said the transfer of the license was made in good faith and that the original grant of the license was consistent with public safety.

BAXTER GRANTS COX'S HEARING REQUEST

The Governor of Maine today said "Certainly" to the Governor of Massachusetts. Governor Cox had requested the extradition of Seth Farr and F. H. Carr, charged with larceny of automobiles from the F. A. Dutton Motor Company of Somerville.

Governor Baxter denied extradition, saying he did not regard the men as fugitives from justice. Governor Cox then asked for a public hearing in Maine and Governor Baxter granted the request.

MRS. HUBER'S ASHES COMING TO TAUNTON

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 28.—Funeral services for Mrs. Maude A. Huber, who was a descendant of the founder of Yale College and related to William Cullen Bryant, will be held Saturday at the country home of her daughter near San Fernando. Following cremation the remains will be shipped to Taunton, Mass., to be interred alongside the remains of her husband. He was Berchold Huber, inventor of the first color printing press.

MARRIAGE SURPRISE TO HIS MOTHER

Mrs. Trumbull Thomas Goes to See Son's Bride, Ziegfeld Chorus Girl

By ERNEST T. JENKINS.

Love sometimes does not consider wealth and social position, and so William Trumbull Thomas, son of William R. Thomas of New York and Mrs. Trumbull Thomas of No. 1213 Beacon street, Brookline, braved the wrath of his aristocratic family, and secretly married a beautiful former Ziegfeld "Follies" girl.

The bride is eighteen-year-old Muriel Manners of Long Island. She was married to her good looking World War veteran husband at Portchester, N. Y., last week. Friends say it was a case of love at first sight.

Thomas, who is twenty-six, met "the girl" while she was dancing blithely about in the beauty chorus during the recent run of Ziegfeld's "Follies" in the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York. He proved such an ardent wooer that Muriel, whose golden locks are said to have dazzled more than one of the gentlemen who occupy "down front" seats during a "Follies" run, immediately set aside her film ambitions with the Fox company.

And now comes Mrs. Trumbull Thomas of Brookline and New York. It seems that "Will" forgot the formality of notifying either parent of his romance and intended marriage.

So it was with considerable shock, the attractive mother stated today at her Brookline home, that she received a letter from "Will" saying he and the former chorus girl were married last Thursday.

Mrs. Thomas, who is closely related to the Samuel Crocker netts, Livingston Cushings an ward Beals of Boston society, it quite plain today that she doesn care a tinker's hurrah for chorus girls in general, and wasn't exactly tickled that her son had become a benedict secretly.

"I received a letter from my son Saturday, saying that on Thursday at Portchester he had married a Miss

BIESES PARTED, RAID ON FLAT REVEALS

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Police are investigating the invasion of the apartment of Mrs. Paul Biese, wife of the orchestra leader of "jazz" fame, by two armed men.

Mrs. Biese, it was revealed, has been estranged from her husband since a year ago last February and has been living with her sister, Miss Dorothy Ellis, a former show girl.

Two men following a mysterious telephone call to the apartment, forced their entrance with drawn revolvers. They ransacked the rooms and when Miss Ellis protested struck her in the mouth and beat her. Mrs. Biese, who locked herself in a bedroom, screamed from a window and the men fled. Robbery was not a motive, police said.

Mr. Biese, questioned about the strange intrusion, said:

"I have no reason to attempt to get divorce evidence. I have been paying my wife $100 a week on an arrangement made by attorneys out of court."

ing there will be an adequate supply of hard coal this Winter.

"We are now getting about 200 cars of hard coal daily through the New England railroad gateways, but we should be getting 600 cars a day for several months in order to have enough for the normal demand.

"During the calendar year, including the week of September 9, there were produced in the anthracite regions 22,261,000 tons as against 64,285,000 tons for 1921.

"If we were going to be able to make up the loss of shipments during the period of the shutdown of the mines, the daily average would have to reach well around 600 cars per day for several months, and this it would seem to us is going to be an impossibility both from the angle of production and railroad transportation."

SAYS 'AMERICA' QUERY LED TO STABBING

A simple question, "How long have you been in America?" caused the death by stabbing of one man, and the trial on second degree murder of another, according to testimony today before Judge Nelson P. Brown and a jury in Dedham Superior Court.

It was the second day of the trial of Nicholas D. Macheras, twenty-nine, of No. 26 Kneeland street, Boston, charged with the murder February 12, of Thomas D. Plakias, former chef in the Splendide restaurant at No. 1360 Beacon street, Brookline.

Charles Raftas, night chef, testified that after Plakias had asked Macheras to wash the dishes, the latter asked: "How long have you been in America?" Plakias retorted, "What difference does that make? You came here to wash dishes!"

George Plakias, a cousin of the dead man, testified he saw Macheras plunge a knife into the neck and back of his cousin.

Muriel Manners," Mrs. Thomas said. I was certainly surprised. I have never met or heard of her. He said he had a surprise for me. It certainly is. I don't know the first thing about this girl.

"For the present I am withholding judgment. I suppose my son is old enough to know what he is doing. From what my son says Miss Manners is apparently a very fine girl. I am going over to see them the latter part of the week. Until I learn all the particulars I shall withhold further comment. Oh, why do they do these things!"

It became known today that young Thomas did take some member of the family into his confidence. It was his married sister, Mrs. Leslie Cooper of Morristown, N. J. With the mother of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, the couple motored to Portchester, where the ceremony was performed.

Today Mr. and Mrs. Cooper gave a luncheon to a few close friends of the couple at Delmonico's, at which the marriage was formally announced. Until his marriage the bridegroom had divided his time between his mother's Brookline home and the residence of his sister in Morristown.

Mr. Thomas, Sr., retired, makes his home at the Union Club, New York. Young Thomas is a member of New York's famous Seventh Regiment, which for exclusiveness corresponds to Boston's First Corps Cadets. He served as a private during the Mexican border trouble.

CAUSES AUTO CRASH; IS FINED AS DRUNK

Lawrence, Sept. 28.—The combination of an auto with a man who never before drove one and a drop or two of liquor wrecked a picket fence, damaged a tree in front of the Franklin street school and made business for the Lawrence district court today. Louis Drouin, a Lawrence contractor, started a friend's car on Lowell street. The machine backed up very suddenly and rapidly, and careening down the street crashed against a tree. Drouin was fined $10 for drunkenness and $15 for driving without a license.

SHOOTS AT MAN IN DISPUTE OVER $20

Lawrence, Sept. 28.—Vincenzo De Benedetto of No. 88 Elm street, who pursued Alfio Zappelo through the streets firing a revolver, was bound over to the Grand Jury today by Judge Mahoney in Lawrence Court on a charge of assault with intent to murder. He was held in $1,000. The shooting followed an argument over $20 that Zappello had lent Benedetto.

GRILL GARAGE MAN'S WIFE IN CORPSE THEFT

St. Louis, Sept. 28.—Gertrude Brenn, wife of Harry Brenn, proprietor of a garage at Oakville, Mo., who disappeared after a fire destroyed his place of business last Tuesday, today was subjected to further questioning by police, who are investigating the mysterious theft of the body of Celeste Schneider, eighteen, who was buried a month ago, from its grave in Mount Hope Cemetery.

A charred torso, at first thought to have been that of Brenn, was found in the ruins of the fire, but after it was examined, Dr. T. L. Carriere, autopsy surgeon of St. Louis County, declared it was the body of a woman.

Detectives announced they were working on the theory that the burned torso might be that of the Schneider girl.

Brenn has been missing since Monday night, when his wife said he answered a call for road service.

COP TAKES ONE BROTHER; FIRES AT ANOTHER

Kenova, W. Va., Sept. 28.—Harvey Napier, a young policeman, fired a bullet into the breast of his brother when the latter, at the head of a mob, attempted to rescue a third brother from the custody of the bluecoat at the entrance to the local jail.

Thomas Napier lies near death. Taylor Napier is in custody. Harvey Napier has not been arrested. County authorities have indicated he shot in self defense.

Shortly after a justice issued a warrant for Taylor's arrest, friends of the latter learned it had been given to Harvey to serve. They congregated betwen the Napier home and the jail.

A few minutes later the bluecoat approached with his brother. The crowd blocked the sidewalk. The officer drew his revolver and another policeman, Callie Jackson, ran to his assistance.

Thomas Napier rushed from an adjoining pool hall with a cue in his hand. According to spectators, he led the rush on the officer and struck his brother, Harvey, on the head. At that instant Harvey shot.

Geneva, Sept. 28 (By the Associated Press)—The question of whether the 1,500,000 Russians who fled upon establishment of the Bolshevik regime and who are still in refuge in neighboring countries, can safely be sent home, despite protests of the Russian associations in exile, was discussed by the assembly of the League of Nations today.

Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, head of the International Committee on Russian Relief, said he resented the fact that these protests were taken into consideration, and declared the refugees could safely be returned.

COST OF LIVING TO INCREASE 10 PER CENT. WITHIN SIX MONTHS

THANKS TO TARIFF BILL

Roger W. Babson Sees Death Warrant of Republican Party in Measure

The cost of living is going to take a ten per cent. jump within the next six months.

You are going to pay at least ten per cent. more for your food and lodging, rent, heat and clothes, than you are paying now.

Roger W. Babson.

The greatest living authority on business statistics says so—Roger W. Babson.

Your meat and drink, your sweets and fruit, even your cigarettes and your matches—they're all going to set you back ten cents on the dollar.

There isn't a single thing you can do about it—except to pay it.

ONE COMPENSATION.

But there's one compensation, says Roger Babson. The Republican party signed its own death warrant for the immediate future with the same pen that signed the tariff bill.

"Because," points out Babson, "the high cost of living jump is going to hit the straight-Republican-ticket man just as hard as it's going to hit his Democratic brother.

"We've put the vested interests in and now we've got to sit back and watch them play the game their own way. There isn't anything to be done about it. There have been no broken rules; the Republican leaders, naturally enough, are going to work for the interests they represent. And when the pinch comes, we've just got to remember that we put them in."

WILSON'S STORY.

And here the great statistician tells a story:

"I remember something ex-President Wilson said to me just after his return from Paris. His eyes filled with tears as he spoke. 'It's this way, Babson,' he said: 'the Republican party has the brains. Unfortunately, they haven't much heart with it. We might say that the Republican party was all brains and no heart and that the Democratic party was all heart—and no brains.'"

The duty placed by the new tariff on commodities affected by it, ranges from three or four to one hundred per cent. The average duty has been estimated at something over thirty-six per cent. Based on the imports which the Treasury expects in the twelve months following the passage of the bill, the revenue should be over $400,000,000. Foreign valuation is the basis of the bill.

"Which means," says Babson, "that the domestic manufacturer is going to put his prices up to just about the mark the importer would demand after he had paid his tariff."

Santa Claus, himself, has been handed a wallop. Thousands of kiddies who had toys last year when the duty was only 35 per cent., will not have them this year when the tariff has been exactly doubled—jumped to 70 per cent.

Wheat, which like pork and lard, enjoyed immunity under the old tariff, will now be taxed 78 cents per hundred pounds.

"And this is particularly ridiculous," says Babson. "The few pounds of wheat that Canadian growers sent into this country kept the price of bread somewhere where it belonged and gave a few brave Western Canadian settlers a chance to send their children to school. Its efect upon the domestic market was negligible."

And dress goods for women and children's dresses has been taxed more than 60 per cent.

Sure Signs That the Bustle Is Coming Back

Paris, Sept. 28.—Designers are getting busy with a bustle. Is the bustle coming back? There are rumors of it in Parisian dressmaking circles.

Dresses are getting longer and longer. Trimmings will likely follow and also devices to make the skirt puff out. Now the hump is going all around the waist and many models show a big roll or plait of material that bulges mightily. These are sure signs of the bustle.

FOIL ATTEMPT TO KILL IRISH CABINET

Dublin, Sept. 28.—A plot to blow up the Provisional Government Building and assassinate the members of the Cabinet was frustrated today. A mine was discovered beneath the building.

Two clerks were reported to have been arrested.

Captain Considine of the Free State army was killed when his troops were attacked from ambush in County Clare.

Free State forces are on the offensive in County Kerry. A battle is reported from Waterford. Several persons were said to have been killed in this engagement.

VALERA QUITS AS REPUBLICAN CHIEFTAIN

Dublin, Sept. 28.—Eamon De Valera and his friends have abdicated, according to the Freeman's Journal, and William Lynch, chief of staff of the Republican forces, and his colleagues are in power. The newspaper states that the hopes of a rational peace are dashed by this new event. It says the Republican leaders are forcing their followers to continue to the bitter end.

Dublin, Sept. 28 (By the Associated Press).—Eamon De Valera, leader of the Irish Republican force, and William Lynch, chief of staff of the Irish Republican army, have parted, according to extracts of correspondence seized by the Free State forces and read by General Mulcahy, commander of the national army, in the session of the Dail Eireann.

These extracts disclosed that there were serious differences of opinion between the two irregular leaders. They showed unhappy relations had existed for some time.

Kerry Republicans Taken Prisoners

Belfast, Sept. 28 (By the Associated Press).—The military force of the Provisional Irish Free State are engaged in sweeping movements against the Republicans in County Kerry. The operations are progressing vigorously and the number of prisoners is growing rapidly.

The Republicans continue their attacks on Nationalist posts, as part of their plan of guerrilla warfare. A deadly trap laid for the Nationalists in County Cork was discovered in time to prevent tragedy. The Republicans had skilfully hidden bombs in a number of trees previously felled across a road. The bombs were so placed that an attempt to move the trees would explode them.

MORRIS GEST WINS IN FIGHT FOR PARENTS

New York, Sept. 28.—"This is the happiest day of my life."

These were the words of Morris Gest, the theatrical producer, today when informed that after his five years of struggle to get his mother and father out of Russia, success had at last come to him. The news came in the form of this cablegram to The American Relief Association:

"The final permission for your family to leave Russia has been obtained. Odessa advises us that they will leave in about three weeks time."

Louise Gershonovitch and Lea Gershonovitch, Mr. Gest's mother and father, his brother, Isaak, and the latter's wife and baby, his two sisters, Sonia and Rachil, who lost their husbands during the revolution, will leave Russia together. Simeon Gest has been waiting for them for many months in Berlin with the youngest sister who contracted tuberculosis before she was finally smuggled out of Russia into Berlin.

Mr. Gest said that his brother would take his family to a quiet place in Germ[illegible] or France to recuperate, and th[illegible] he was going to see them just as [illegible]n as possible.

CLAIMS DEATH PROBE IS BLOCKED

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 28.—Charlotte Mills, fifteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. James Mills, who was slain September 4 with the Rev. Edward W. Hall, pastor of the Church of St. John the Baptist at New Brunswick, of which Mrs. Mills was the choir leader, has appealed direct to Governor Edwards for help in running down the murderer or murderers of her mother.

The girl's appeal came after two weeks of apparently fruitless efforts on the part of the authorities of Somerset and Middlesex Counties, in one of which the victims lived and in the other of which their bodies were found.

Their investigations have been marked chiefly by almost daily grillings of the husband of the slain woman, who has told his story over and over again, both in the seclusion of the prosecutor's office and in public and has protested that he knew nothing of any improper relations between his wife and the clergyman or of their movements on the night of the murder.

There has been much criticism of the failure of the authorities to get anywhere. Talk of "influence" has been freely heard. Charlotte Mills took note of such talk in her letter to Governor Edwards when she said strangers had written her that "the political gang is running things."

IZZY AND 3 PALS IN $40,000 R. I. LIQUOR SUIT

Providence, Sept. 28.—Izzy Einstein, the prohibition sleuth of hundreds of raids and equally numerous disguises; Moe Smith, his "side kick"; Peter Reater, their pugilistic bodyguard, and Richard Leader, new acting chief prohibition enforcement officer for Rhode Island, were sued for $10,000 apiece today by proprietors of two places raided three weeks ago in Central Falls and Pawtucket.

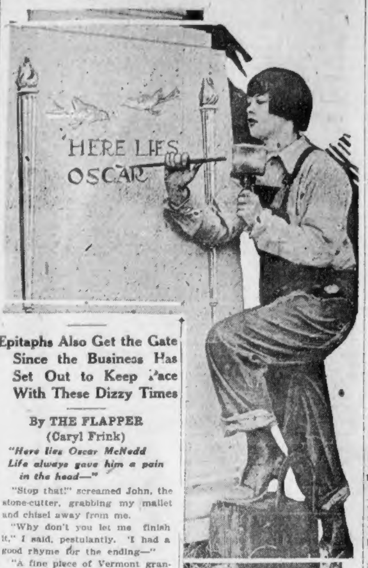
Simultaneous with filing of the suits came decision today by Federal Commissioner Matteson that Izy's raid on one of the plaintiffs, James C. Taylor of No. 162 Washington street, Central Falls, was unlawful because the federal search warrant was for No. 180 on that street. Taylor was discharged on a complaint of illegal possession and sale.

David Collins, whose place in Dexter street, Pawtucket, was raided by Acting Chief Prohibition Enforcement Officer Leader and others, sues Leader in two actions for $5,000 each.

SUPREME COURT TO ALLOW BEER ISSUE

Columbus, O., Sept. 28.—The Ohio Supreme Court today frustrated another effort to prevent a vote at the November 7 election on a constitutional amendment authorizing the sale in Ohio of light wines and beer, by refusing to hear the petition filed by Attorney George S. Hawke of Cincinnati, seeking to enjoin the Secretary of State from placing the beer proposal on the ballots

Widows Give Tombstone Styles a Real Jolt



THE JOB HAS ITS THRILLS. Being a chisler in a tombstone works is a gosh darned ticklish job. One slip of the chisel an' you've ruined a couple tons of priceless Peruvian sandstone or som'th'n'.

Epitaphs Also Get the Gate Since the Business Has Set Out to Keep Pace With These Dizzy Times

By THE FLAPPER (Caryl Frink)

"Here lies Oscar McNedd
Life always gave him a pain in the head—"

"Stop that!" screamed John, the stone-cutter, grabbing my mallet and chisel away from me.

"Why don't you let me finish it," I said, pestulantly. "I had a good rhyme for the ending—"

"A fine piece of Vermont granite you've spoiled!" wailed the stone-cutter. "They shoulda started you on a block o' concrete."

"For the end I was gonna say: "'He's tickled to death to be dead'."

STYLES SHIFT LIKE HATS.

"That's awful," groaned John. "Don'tcha know the styles in tombstones has changed considerable in the last twent'-five years? It ain't good form to have rhymes on 'em any more."

"I didn't know there were styles in headpieces," I said.

"Huh, I sh'd guess there are," said John. Why, in our profession we even get out catalogues of the new designs, same as any other business. Our tombstones and monuments are always right up to the minute."

"I shouldn't think it'd make any difference—"

WIDOW ORDERS STONE.

"Oh doesn't it," interrupted John, "Customs change with the years; an' what went for ten 'r fifteen years ago wouldn't do f'r today. F'r'instance. You take an order I had a few years ago.

"A woman comes to me an' orders two tombstones, one f'r her dear departed husband, an' one f'r herself. That, you see, usta be the style. It was taken f'r granted that the widow would soon expire of grief.

"Well, sir,"—John paused to relight his pipe—"I fixed her up with two han'some headstones an' they were set out in the cemetery. Her's is jus' the same as his, excep' there's a blank left for the date of her finish.

THEN WEDS AGAIN.

"An,' wouldja believe it, the other day I read in the paper about how she's gone an' married a ball player! Now, I ask you could anything be sillier than that unfinished tombstone out there? So you c'n see that the less that's said on a stone these days, the better. We jus' state the facts now, plain an' simple."

"What do you think'll be the styles of the future?" I asked John.

"No headstones at all," predicted John. "An' I say that against my own int'rests, too, as am in the business. An' what's more," John went on, "I think there'll be no cemetaries in the future, either.

"They'll be usin' the ground f'r them that's alive. And," John added, generously, "though I be gone myself, I won't begrudge 'em the use of my share of it."

LADDER CAPTAIN LOSES LEG IN SO. END FIRE

A small fire in the South End, which was extinguished before it had done much damage, resulted in the serious injury of a fire captain and the wrecking of an auto delivery truck today.

The fire was at the Harriet Tubman Home for Aged Colored Women at No. 25 Holyoke street. Captain William C. Swan of Ladder 15 leaped off the truck as it neared the home. As he landed on the pavement he stumbled in the path of the truck and the wheels passed over his left leg.

Rescue Company No. 1 became an ambulance squad. An improvised tourniquet was made and Captain Swan was taken to the City Hospital, where physicians said it would be necessary to amputate the leg in order to save Captain Swan's life. He was in a critical condition from the loss of blood.

Fifteen minutes later, after the fire in a bedroom on the third floor had been put out, an auto truck driven by Calvin C. Mills of No. 17 Summit street, West Somerville, came down Holyoke street.

The ladder truck was turning to return to the firehouse. An end of one of the big ladders struck the inside of the rear end of the truck and ripped the body off.

REFUSED TO SALUTE FLAG AND IS JAILED

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 28.—After having had his hat forcibly removed by a deputy sheriff when the American flag passed during the Grand Army of the Republic parade here, Samuel R. Hiatt, 36, was arrested and when put in a cell was beaten by prisoners to whom he told his story and appealed for sympathy.

Hiatt was asked several times to uncover and finally Deputy Sheriff Robb, brother of the parson-sheriff, removed the offending top-piece, but Hiatt retrieved it and stood while more flags passed. Robb put him in jail.

BANK VAULT MAY TELL MOTIVE OF TWIN SUICIDES

Gorham, Me., Sept. 28.—As the time lock on a safety deposit vault in the Fidelity Trust Company at Portland slowly ticks off the hours, the solution of the strangest death pact ever brought to the attention of the police is being worked out through the identification of two men, twins, who were found Monday, hanging to the limbs of a hemlock tree in the almost inaccessible forest near here.

In spite of all apparent efforts on the part of the men to make identification impossible, the dealer's mark on neckties worn by the men furnished the clue which resulted in the Passaic, N. J., police identifying the brothers as Charles J. and William E. Westerfelt, of Little Falls.

KEYS ON LOG.

Keys, found on a log near the tree on which the bodies were found were found to fit the lock in a safe deposit vault of the Fidelity Trust Co. of Portland. The time locks have prevented opening the boxes as yet.

The town records of Gorham and other villages nearby will be examined in the hope of throwing light on the theory that the brothers, noted in Little Falls and Passaic, N. J., for their absolute devotion to each other, may have, at one time lived in this vicinity.

They were seen near the clearing last Thursday, by a farmer. At the foot of the tree were signs that told a gruesome story. The moss rubbed from a log told of the spot where the brothers sat, as they painfully sought to destroy all trace of their identity, the ashes of a small fire were all that was left of papers, and other marks which would have let the world know "Why?"

BUSINESS FAILED.

In Passaic, where the "Westerfelt Twins" conducted a paint and varnish concern, folks were still discussing the business failure of the brothers and the high courage which had sent them from the pride of a flourishing business to laboring in a cemetery.

Twin Suicides Worried Over Money Matters

Passaic, N. J., Sept. 28.—Mrs Richard Van Keuren of Hackensack expects to leave today for Gorham Me., to identify the bodies of the two men found hanging from a tree in the woods near there and who are her cousins believed to be Charles B. and James William Westervelt of Little Falls.

About a week prior to their leaving it was learned today, they visited the offices of their lawyer, William A. Sumner, of Paterson, where each drew his will. They bequeathed all of their property to two cousins, Miss Alida Van Ness, a cashier at a department store in Paterson, and Mrs. Richard Van Keuren, of Hackensack.

Sumner said: "The fact that they came to execute their wills, feeling so depressed, would lead me to believe that they sought a way out of what they thought financial difficulties; the theory of murder is impossible.

A Well-Known New York Banker Says:

"The place of advertising in the present economic system is thoroughly well established."

Goodwill has come to be a vital factor in the success of any business, and goodwill can only be created by right and persistent advertising.

A manufacturer who advertises honestly the stability and quality of his goods sets for himself a standard of production. He makes a treaty of faith with the buying public which he must uphold at any cost.

Frequently, for the purpose of promotion, the manufacturer needs financial assistance.

The time is fast approaching when bankers, having carefully investigated the standing of a manufacturer desiring a loan, will ask this leading question:

"What is his advertising appropriation?"

DENBY NAMES 12 WARSHIPS TO RUSH TO TURKEY

Orders for the dispatch of the destroyers followed so closely upon the formal statement of Secretary of State Hughes that the United States was fully in sympathy with the demands of the three allied governments that the straits be kept open and that there be full freedom in the Dardanelles, Bosphorus and the Sea of Marmora, that it was pointed out in unofficial quarter that the presence of the American warships would automatically serve to give assurance to the allies in their negotiations with the Turkish Nationalists. American naval forces in the Mediterranean will be further augmented early next month by the Cruiser Pittsburgh.

Britain Alarmed by Dardanelles Crisis

London, Sept. 28 (By the Associated Press).—British government circles today took a grave view of the situation in the Dardenelles, which was regarded as so critical as to overshadow the revolutionary development in Greece.

The opinion was expressed that there is a greater prospect of fighting between the British and Turkish Nationals than at any previous time.

In connection with the British attitude developing through Cabinet meetings, it seemed apparent that grave decisions were being taken. Several members on leaving after the morning meeting, did not wear cheerful faces Admiral Earl Beatty, chief of the naval staff, General the Earl of Cavan, chief of the army staff and General Trenchard, the air marshal, representing the navy, land and air forces respectively, attended the meeting.

The Turkish troop movements continue and for the fifth time they have violated the neutral zones, taking positions in the regions of Dumbrek, Lampsaki, Yaghjilar and Sangakeli.

Cavalry is advancing on Asmali-Tefe, apparently with the object of isolating the British advance posts at Kephez, and aid has been sent to the latter.

One view of Mustapha Kemal's intentions, it is stated, is that under the cover of his cavalry he may be bringing up artillery and material and doing all he can to compel the British to fire the first shot.

The Greek battleship Averoff, the crew of which mutinied yesterday, is steaming for Piraeus through the Dardanelles, and is in danger of bombardment by the Kemalist artillery concealed in the hills on the Asiatic side. The allied naval authorities here are hopeful that she will escape unscathed, as she is leaving Turkish waters at their request.

Turks Demand That Britain Recall Troops

Smyrna, Sept. 28 (By Associated Press).—Yussuf Kemal Bey, Nationalist foreign minister, left for Angora today with the draft of the Nationalists' reply to the allied peace proposals. It is understood to embrace the following conditions:

1—Prior to the opening of the peace conference the Nationalists shall occupy all stragetical points in order to achieve the provisions of the Nationalist pact regarding Thrace.

2—All British forces now en route shall be recalled and the British shall abstain from fortifying the neutral zones.

3—The Nationalists shall occupy Thrace before the peace conference.

4—The Nationalists reserve the right to contest certain other points in the allied proposals.

5—The Nationalists object to the demilitarization of Thrace and Marmora, but no objection is raised to fortification of the Dardanelles.

6—Soviet Russia, Ukraine and all countries bordering on the Black Sea shall be represented in the conference.

The Kemalist representative said that Turkey was ready to guarantee the freedom of the Dardanelles for merchantmen, but objected to the English claim that it could only be done by allied military occupation of the Straits.

"Turkey would refuse to accept control of the Straits by the League of Nations or anyone else," he declared.

British Reinforce Aircraft Fleet

London, Sept. 28. (By the Associated Press)—An important concentration of British aircraft in the Near East is under way. An augmented squadron is now en route from Egypt for Constantinople. It includes sixteen first-class machines and fifteen reserve planes.

Another squadron of about forty machines left Malta with the fleet, and it is reported three more squadrons are in readiness for immediate departure if developments necessitate their services.

The abdication of King Constantine of Greece, making again possible co-operation between Prime Minister Lloyd George and ex-Premier Venizelos, may cause a lightning change in Great Britain's policy toward the Turks, according to well-informed circles here today.

With Constantine out of the way it is claimed there will be once more a chance of reorganizing the best forces of Greece under Venizelos, whose Cretan soldiers were the backbone of the army until Constantine replaced the officers with his own sympathizers, especially with generals untrained and inexperienced in the great wars.

Turkish Irregulars Mobilize in Thrace

London—Turkish irregulars have begun to concentrate in Thrace, says a report from Constantinople.

Turkish cavalry is reported to have advanced from Erenkeui towards Asmalitope, apparently in an attempt to cut off the British advanced post at Kopez.

A British column, supported with artillery, has set out from Chanak, and it is believed they are going to meet the Turks.

France Fears Greeks Will Start Trouble

Paris, Sept. 28 (By the Associated Press).—France's policy in the Near East as laid down in the note she sent to Kemal Pasha jointly with the other allies, has not been modified by the overturn in Greece, it was announced officially after a meeting of the Cabinet today at Rambouillet.

The reported determination of the new Greek government to defend Thrace. Such a decision, it is believed, would be certain to react very unfavorably on the Kemalists.

M. Franklin Bouillon, the French emissary to the Nationalists, is expected to see Kemal at Smyrna today or tomorrow.

After his interview with the French diplomat, Kemal it is understood, will leave immediately for Angora, where the Nationalists Assembly will formally vote on the allied communication.

Ten Millions in Tobacco Burned in Smyrna

Washington, Sept. 28.—Ten million dollars worth of Turkish tobacco will not be rolled into cigarettes or packed into pipe bowls. It has gone up in smoke.

Commercial Attache Roy C. Hall, at Athens, Greece, put this estimate on the tobacco lost in the burning of Smyrna by the Turks.

The fire also caused the loss of seventy per cent. of the Turkish crop and damage to the remainder. No shipments of figs or currants had been made before the collapse of the city, and but two or three shipments of the raisen crop.

Crown Prince George Accepts Greek Throne

Athens, Sept. 28.—Crown Prince George of Greece has accepted the Hellenic throne in succession to his father, former King Constantine, who abdicated as the result of a military and naval revolution, it was announced today.

General Nider Picked to Be Greek Premier

Athens, Sept. 28.—The prospect seems to be that General Nider will undoubtedly be called to the Premiership of the new government, with former Foreign Minister Carapanos becoming Foreign Minister, unless M. Coromilas should resume this ministry, with Ex-Finance Minister Alexander Diomede again becoming Minister of Finance.

London Press Ridicules Constantine in Exile

London Sept. 28 (By Associated Press).—The second dethronement of Constantine of Greece brings no tears here. He has no friends among the British public owing to his German sympathies during the World War. His exit only provokes a fresh series of the caricatures with which he has been constantly ridiculed.

"A paltry personage vanishes from the stage, following Wilhelm Hohenzollern into obscurity and total discredit," summarizes the general press opinion. Nevertheless it is regarded as more than unfortunate that settled government in Greece should be destroyed at this moment, adding serious difficulties to a situation already too complex.

Newer Form of Iron a Blessing To Folks Who Are Weak, Sickly, Nervous or Run-down

Thousands of People Have Suffered From all Sorts of Alarming Symptoms And After Ailing, Complaining and Doctoring for Years Found That the Real Trouble Was Lack of Iron in Their Blood—Astonishing Results Often Shown in Two Short Weeks From Use of Nuxated Iron

"Six weeks ago I saw a special offer in the paper telling about the terrible devitalizing weakness caused by lack of iron in the blood, and how examinations by physicians had shown that three people out of every four you meet lack 100 per cent iron in their blood. For years I had been all tired out with my work and never felt well a single day. For long periods I would have pains in my back and think I was getting kidney trouble. Then I had dizzy spells, pains and palpitations around my heart, and began to far I was getting heart disease. I suffered from gas and my meals always upset me. Nothing I ate agreed with me or seemed to do me any good, and I could not get any strength out of my food.

I have been taking Nuxated Iron for two weeks. The results are simply astounding. I can work twice as long without tiring and I feel myself getting stronger every day. All my alarming symptoms have disappeared and I can conscientiously say that more iron in my blood has tremendously increased my strength, energy and endurance."

The above is a typical hypothetical case showing the results that have been achieved by thousands of people since we started this "Satisfaction or Money Back" offer on Nuxated Iron. We will make you the same guarantee. If after taking two weeks' treatment of Nuxated Iron you cannot walk twice as far or work twice as long without tiring, and you are not absolutely delighted with the results, we will promptly refund your money.

For sale by all druggists, including Houghton & Dutton, Epstein Drug Co., A. L. Frye, S. S. Pierce, Armstrong Co.

NOTE.—The above company is known to be thoroughly reliable Over. 4,000,000 packages of Nuxated Iron are sold annually, and it has been used and highly recommended by former U. S. Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts and many physicians. We are able to guarantee that if you do not obtain all and even greater benefits than you expect [illegible] refund your money.

For Hymen's Attendants

The bride has the friends of her girlhood. The groom chooses his ushers from the boys with whom he went to school and college. The filmy frocks of the bridesmaids suggest a bouquet of unusual beauty. The ushers in their formal attire offer the contrasting note needed to complete the picture.

The idea of giving the bridal party individual gifts as souvenirs is a pleasing one. Custom has conventionalized the gifts for the men—cuff-links, card-cases, cigarette-cases, gold knives, pencils, or some other personal trinket.

For the bridesmaids many things may be chosen—one of the new mesh bracelets, bar-pins, sweater-pins, vanity-cases, cigarette-holders, earrings—any of the little personal vanities so dear to all women.

We have a very complete assortment of gifts suitable for bridesmaids and ushers. We shall be glad to make suggestions or to show you just what you had in mind.

THREE DUETS IN 'TANGERINE' ARE POPULAR

Few duets ever become popular songs, but when Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit sing duets the exceptions become the rule. This pair of skillful singers have made very popular three duets in "Tangerine." They are "The Isle of Tangerine," "Sweet Lady" and "Listen to Me."

Julia [illegible]

Miss Sanderson has always had success with duets, as witness "When I Tell Them How Wonderful You Are," her great song hit of a few years ago. The Sanderson-Crumit combination at the Shubert, however, is the best singing arrangement Miss Sanderson has found yet.

Breathing tropic beauty the "Isle of Tangerine" could hardly fail to become popular.

"There's an island, just you and my maid,
Palm trees swaying, white shadows playing,
From your description it sounds mighty nice
I'd love to find such a sweet paradise.
Birds all sing there, love will be king there
Life will seem like a dream.
They call Tangerine."

COMMUNISTS RAID GERMAN MOVIE HOUSE

Leipsic, Sept. 28.—A score of armed men, believed to be Communists, raided a suburban motion picture theatre yesterday and confiscated a film depicting alleged chaotic conditions in Russia and the consequences of the military power of the Soviet government. The raiders, who wore German military blouses, gained entrance by buying tickets for the cheapest seats in the house, but once inside drew revolvers and demanded the film. Communists recently attempted to interrupt the showing of the same film in Hamburg.

Betty Alden Says Smart Set Is to Enjoy Senior Supper Dances Once More

By BETTY ALDEN.

THOSE who like a bit of terpsichorean exercise as well as anything else rejoiced, indeed, to hear that Boston's smart set may once more trip the light fantastic at the gay senior supper dances which made such a "hit" last year.

Ronald Lyman, who is again in charge, has procured the large ballroom and foyer of the Copley-Plaza for this series of dances, the first of which comes on the 15th of December. The other dates are January 26, February 9, February 23 and March 9.

THESE dances, under Mr. Lyman's direction, are for the married folk as well as the bachelors and girls who have been out for a number of years. But the younger set—composed of the all-important "debbies" and their train of cavaliers, as well as the girls who have been out only a year or so—must have an opportunity to exercise their toes, too.

Wherefore the junior supper dances, which are in charge of Mr. N. Penrose Hallowell, and are also to be held at the Copley-Plaza. The first of these gay affairs comes on the 17th of November, the others scheduled for December 8, December 20, January 18 and February 16.

MISS NELL WHITE, who is of the coterie of attractive girls frequently seen at these smart dances, is tall and slender, with rather a fragile sort of beauty. Last Winter she did quite a bit of charity work, and was also in the clever group taking part in the "Mid-Night Frolic" given as part of the Women's Day held last Winter at the Copley-Plaza.

MISS NELL WHITE

MR. AND MRS. ROLAND G. HOPKINS and their daughter, Miss Marcia S. Hopkins, of Chestnut Hill, have been stopping for a few days in New York at the Hotel Chatham. Miss Hopkins is one of this season's debutantes.

MRS. ROGER F. HOOPER (Justine V. R. Barber) of Beacon street, has as her guest her mother, Mrs. Thomas H. Barber of New York. Mrs. Barber will leave November 15 for San Francisco and shortly afterwards sail for China and Japan, where she will pass the Winter.

THE Casino and Country Club at Newport will be kept open as late as November 1 this season, which proves that "Summer" colonists at the Rhode Island resort seem more and more reluctant to return to their town houses each year.

Speaking of Newport—the Narragansett avenue villa of the late Colonel George Richmond Fearing, now owned by Mr. Fearing, Jr., has been purchased by John Thwaites of Thwaites, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Thwaites, who are keenly interested in horses, intend to become permanent Summer residents of Newport.

The sale is said to include also the purchase [illegible] the Sheldon cottage known as "The Orchard," where Admiral and Mrs. Cameron McR. Winslow and their family of Bay State road have been making their home during the Summer months.

THE many connections of Mr. and Mrs. Copley Amory (Mary Russell) will be interested to learn that they have taken an apartment in New York at No. 131 East Sixty-sixth street. Mr. Amory, who is a member of the Somerset Club here, graduated from Harvard with the class of '88. Last Winter the Amorys had a place in New York close to their present address.

MRS. NATHANIEL THAYER, who without a doubt is one of Boston's busiest and most prominent matrons of the smart set, is stopping for a few days in New York at the Hotel Belmont.

After a long Summer of golf, tennis, luncheons and dinner parties at her Newport estate, Mrs. Thayer has a busy Winter ahead of her here. Only recently she was appointed chairman of some important committee dealing with the fuel situation.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS B. WELLINGTON, together with the Francis B. Sears, also of Weston, motored up to the White Mountains and have planned a three weeks' stay at the Mountain View House. It was only last week that Mr. and Mrs. Wellington announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Linda Wellington, to the Rev. Palfrey Perkins of Weston.

N. Y. DEMOCRATIC TICKET IN DOUBT

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The 734 delegates comprising the Democratic State Convention went into the initial session today with the entire slate of nominees, from governor to State engineer, shrouded in uncertainty.

Leaders of the boom for Ex-Governor Al Smith expressed every confidence today in advance of the convention opening that Smith would dominate the ticket.

The friends of William R. Hearst, New York publisher, headed by Mayor John F. Hylan of New York, John H. McCooey of Brooklyn, and Edwin S. Harris, former chairman of the Democratic State Committee, were equally confident that their efforts to nominate Mr. Hearst will be successful.

SIX MEN VAINLY TRY TO RIP OVERALLS

Six husky men, who struggled ineffectually to rip asunder a pair of overalls, provided plenty of amusement for the throngs who attended the third day of the Men's Apparel Show, which is being staged at Mechanics Building by the Men's Apparel Club of New England.

This came as part of an offer made by the Sweet-Orr Co., makers of overalls.

A regulation pair of denim "jumpers" were placed on the counter of the booth, and it was announced that any group of men who could tear them apart would be given a complete outfit of overalls, one apiece, free.

GIVE UP, BEATEN.

Accordingly, six powerful men stepped forward. Three of them took one leg, while three others, husky colored men, seized the other. At a given signal the two groups began to pull in different directions.

As they tugged and strained, without any noticeable effect on the overalls, the crowd began to gather. Before long the men had a good-sized audience. But they could not accomplish the feat, and were obliged to give up, beaten.

During the day the New England Association of Retail Clothiers held an impromptu meeting, with approximately 150 of its members present. Charles E. Wry, executive director of the National Association, delivered an address, telling of the work done at the convention of his organization in New York two weeks ago.

SEEK MORE MEMBERS

Frank A. Long of Brockton, president of the New England Association, presided, while among those on the platform were Julius Morse and Jerry P. Wall, vice-president and director, respectively, of the National Association.

Plans for increasing the membership of the association were discussed. It is hoped that the present membership of 250 may be raised to 350 by the time of the convention this Winter.

The booth of George L. Griffin, displaying Stratford Clothes, was the centre of admiring comment throughout the day, due largely to a demure little model who minced about in old colonial clothes. The spectators who came to see her remained to look at the other exhibits.

DISCHARGED ON $2,800 LARCENY CASE

Taunton, Sept. 28.—A charge of the larceny of $2,800 from Tessie Williams preferred against Joseph Jacobs of No. 47 Turner street, Hough's Neck, was dropped in District Court here today. The man was held for the Grand Jury on a charge of the larceny of forty gallons of liquor, valued at $1,200, from the home of Thomas H. Kerns of Raynham. The court ruled there was not sufficient evidence in the first instance.

THREE ARE SOUGHT AS BRAINS OF FAKE POOL ROOM GANG

VICTIMS LOSE THOUSANDS IN MIAMI GOLF CLUB 'DEN'

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

"Gentleman Jim" Knowles, Frank Smith and "Jimmie" McLaughlin, internationally known gamblers, are being sought by the Boston police in connection with the fleecing of Paul Downey, former note teller of the Federal Trust Company.

These men, said to be experts in all forms of crooked gambling, are believed to have been the brains of the gang of which Humphrey Lane and Robert L. Finn, now under arrest, were minor members

Their operations have been carried out in all parts of the country, as well as on ocean liners, and they were the prime movers in a notorious "golf" club at Miami, Florida cleaned out by the authorities last year

This club, ostensibly devoted to golf, was in reality a crooked gambling den, known from coast to coast, with liquor handled as a side issue.

"PAY-OFF" SWINDLE.

Here wealthy men from all parts of the country, spending the Winter in Florida, were fleeced of thousands of dollars through ordinary gambling games and the "pay-off" swindle

The club was provided with roulette wheels, faro layouts, stud and draw poker tables crap tables baccarat and solitaire layouts, and every device necessary to tempt the gambling spirit of its patrons.

Wealthy men were induced to patronize the place, and as a further incentive the gang served choice liquors, run from the Bahamas, Bimini and Cuba.

Not satisfied with the proceeds obtained from the regular run of games, the majority of which were said to be crooked, the gang worked the "pay-off" successfully.

The method consisted in picking up a sucker with plenty of money, who was induced to go to the club and interested in betting. He was introduced to Knowles, who posed as a Boston banker or business man

THE "PAY-OFF" STUFF.

In the "pay-off" the sucker has no chance. He is first induced to make bets for a number of the gang using checks. Seeing large sums of money won that he must pay over to another arouses his cupidity. Then the member of the gang tells the sucker to make a bet for himself using the check of the gang member. "No chance for you to lose because you are betting by check and I stand the loss if there is any."

The sucker wins perhaps $200,000 on a $50,000 bet. But the member of the gang who gave the sucker the check has disappeared.

The gambling house tells the sucker that it holds $200,000 for him and will pay off the bet if he will simply produce $50,000 in cash to show that he did not bet a worthless check. "How would we have been protected had you lost that bet and the check had been worthless?"

ALL VERY SIMPLE.

So the sucker goes out and gets his own cash. He takes it to the gambling house and it is exchanged for the check. Then just as the gambler is about to count out his $300,000 in winnings somebody discovers that a mistake was made in that particular race. The correction came over the wire five minutes after the sucker had gone out to get his $[illegible]. "Your horse ran second," they explained. "Sorry you lose." Some suckers have been trimmed by this racket four or five times in succession

Last October the police of Miami raided the club and fifteen men, including Knowles, McLaughlin and Smith, were arrested

They were all fined and ordered from the State.

The three men returned to Boston and directed their attention to the pool room at No. 5 Park square where they are said to have been nearly as successful as in Florida. Immediately upon the arrest of Lane and Finn they left town, and are believed to have gone to New York

3 "SQUARE" GAMBLERS.

A former pool runner he was at one time manager of a a notorious poolroom on West 38th street, New York.

Because of trouble in which he played an active part, he was forced to leave that city temporarily and [illegible] to his native heath

McLaughlin and Smith have been prominent in the Boston underworld for some years, and have always had the reputation heretofore of paying bets. The men previously had offices in the Winthrop Building and later on lower Washington street

Girl counter clerks, employed in a popular down-town restaurant, were regular customers of the gang of fake poolroom gamblers who fleeced Downey, charged with looting the Federal Trust

These girls vied with other women, one of them the wife of a prominent Boston man, in laying almost daily bets on horses, and their wagers at times were heavy.

In the meantime Downey still languishes in jail, his family having failed to raise the necessary $75,000 bonds according to his counsel, Richard Walsh.

Rumors that Downey's life would be sacrificed in order to keep him quiet in case he were released on bail, were generally discounted by the police.

They were also denied among the gambling fraternity, who declared that Downey's evidence would be insufficient to convict anyone of larceny or conspiracy

BOSTON WOMAN IN ROMANTIC GOLD QUEST

A Chinese youth, huddled and ill, shrank back against an alley wall in New York's East Side. A dozen ragamuffins confronted him

"'Lo, One Lung," they jibed, "You velle smart fellar, got yer washin' allee done, out takin' de air, eh?"

A grimy hand darted forward, and maliciously jerked the Chinaman's quie. His head twisted painfully, but the muscles of his yellow face remained immobile, only the despairing gleam in the almond eyes revealed the sickening dread in his heart.

A sly foot worked toward the sandaled feet of the Oriental, thrust itself between them, and the lean form sprawled on the dirty pavement.

"You d—— brats." A burly figure loomed up in the midst of the jeering street gamins. They scattered. A big hand caught the loose folds of the Chinaman's jacket, drew him to his feet, and propelled him toward the warm scent of a restaurant. Food was set before him. He ate. Life be stirred itself again. Gratefulness surged in a warm flood upon the Oriental's benumbed senses. He slept

SLAVED FOR "MASTER."

When he awoke he found himself in the restaurant of Samuel Rabinowitz on Katrin street, East Side. The big proprietor hovered over him.

"Speak English?" he asked.

A faint wrinkling of the almond eyes struggled to express a smile at the kindly and reassuring tone of the voice, ubt there was no answer to the question

That was fifteen years ago. For the first three years of that time the Chinaman, no one knew his name, worked in the restaurant of Rabinowitz. Faithful and unforgetting, he never left the side of his benefactor. He would invent things to do for the man he was pleased to call "master."

One day, for the Chinese lad had picked up a smattering of English, he said to Rabinowitz.

"Some day I go back to China. I will have fortune over there. When I die, I leave to you."

Rabinowitz laughed.

But one other day, the Oriental said good-bye to the restaurant owner.

"I go back to China. I make money."

TOLD OF FORTUNE.

Rabinowitz was sorry to see him go. He puzzled over it awhile. The boy had showed signs of prosperity. Then he forgot him entirely.

He had become a very successful man himself. He decided to come to Boston, but he now had twenty-one stores or delicatessen shops scattered about New York. He sold them, came here and soon had thriving restaurants on Essex and Summer streets, a large kosher place on City Hall avenue, and another on Causeway street.

One day about ten years ago, he received a telephone call. It was from the American Express Company, North Station branch

"Are you Samuel Rabinowitz, formerly of New York? There's $100,000 waiting for you over here from China."

Did Rabinowitz get excited? Not a bit. He laughed

"You've got the wrong man. Don't pester me," he said, and hung up. He had been bothered too much before by being mistaken for a dozen other Rabinowitzes. He thought this also a case of mistaken identity

"What is it?" his wife asked, as he turned from the telephone.

He told her, and laughingly added "Somebody will have a job carting a carload of Chinese money to the bank."

REMEMBERS AT LAST.

A year later as he was standing in his restaurant door, he uttered an exclamation. He had remembered the Chinese boy's promise to leave him a fortune.

Hurriedly, he found a lawyer, and they went to the American Railway Company offices to dig up the records. Before anything could be done about it, however, Samuel Rabinowitz died. His widow ran his restaurants. She was married again to William Haypairn, two years ago.

But the story is not ended. The former Mrs. Rabinowitz has received lately, a telephone call purporting to come from the express company, telling her the fortune is still with the American Railway Company unclaimed. The man left no name.

She went to the company's offices but was told it would be impossible to look up the records of so long ago

SEEK TO PROVE CLAIM.

She, like her husband, went to her lawyer, Attorney Nathan Ullian. He is preparing to file an interrogatory plea to have the records examined

Meanwhile he has a Chinese geneology expert looking up Chinese families which have left large fortunes. He himself will sail for China in December to dig into the strange case.

MRS. WILLIAM HALPAIRN

Mrs. Halpairn's late husband saved a Chinese boy from a gang on New York's East Side many years ago. Later he was offered $100,000 during a mysterious telephone call. His widow, now married again, is making an unusual search for this money.

MILLINERY CO. HEAD SHOOTS SELF 5 TIMES

Portland, Me, Sept. 28—Five times did Everett G. Benner, wealthy president of the E. G. Benner Wholesale Millinery Company, fire shots into his neck, mouth and ear. He then fell dead across a packing case.

Clerks entering the store today found the lifeless form lying in a pool of blood. The number of wounds first indicated murder, but later examination disclosed powder marks on the flesh, and this, coupled with the fact the pistol was still clutched in the hand with five shots missing gave the version of suicide

Benner had a widespread reputation throughout New England in the millinery trade.

If you like to boil

If you like to boil your white cottons there is nothing so good as Rinso. Pour enough Rinso solution in your boiler to give you the suds you like. The other soaps and the soap powder you used to use are not needed with Rinso.

If you use a washing machine

Help it to do its best work. Rinso suds have the body needed to get clothes clean without any rubbing. With Rinso you do not have to use a soap powder—nor any other soap. Get Rinso today. At grocery and department stores everywhere. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

MAY REINSTATE SLEEPER AS ATTORNEY

The famous case which resulted in the disbarment of Alvah G. Sleeper more than a year ago for perjury was reopened today with a hearing, which may result in the reinstatement of Sleeper at the Massachusetts bar.

The hearing, which took place before Justice Jenney of the Supreme Court, was on a motion by Sleeper's attorneys to revoke the decree of disbarment.

Henry F. Hurlburt, president of the Boston Bar Association made no attempt today to answer the new allegations. He pointed out that no hearing had yet been held on the exceptions taken by Sleeper which question the power of a judge to disbar an attorney for perjury committed in his presence.

Judge Jenney took the petition under advisement. If he refuses to vacate the decree of disbarment a hearing will be held on the exceptions. If he decides favorably on the motion, Sleeper will be restored to the bar.

SEES BOSTON CRISIS IN STREET TRAFFIC

C. C. Jackson.

Boston faces a serious crisis in motor and street car transportation, and unless the problem is solved during the next five years the city stands in danger of losing permanently its preeminence over other cities and towns in the State.

This is the opinion of C. C. Jackson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and president of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers, forcefully expressed at the hearing before the Public Utilities Commission on the city's transportation problem. The hearing will be continued on October 2.

Day's News in Jazz Time

By MORTON BIRGE

From Beverly there comes a tale
Of bootleg dames—a woeful wail
Of liquor sold in manner bold
Near City Hall. It's awful.
But right in Boston pure we get
A yarn of waiter girls who bet,
Who day by day the races play,
Though knowing it unlawful.
U. S destroyers on their toes
To show the Turk just where he goes;
A Berkshire "still" explodes at will
With manifold disaster
Jack Dempsey grabs a wounded moose
Which, in a final fling, cut loose
Till Dempsey found, in one short round,
The dying brute his master
Milk may go up October first,
But, even so, that's not the worst,
For we have heard, on Babson's word,
What tariff costs are brewing
It seems, no matter what you make,
There's someone standing by to take
It right away. Yes, day by day
There's something like that doing.
Home and foreign, in between—

100 BOYS FIGHT FOR GIRL'S LOVE

Fulton, Ill., Sept. 28.—The rivalry of two high school boys for the attentions of a girl brought about combat in the fields near here with fifty Fulton High School boys matched against about the same number from the neighboring town of Morrison. A sheriff's force ended the fray without serious casualties, although the hostiles were hotly attacking each other with clubs and hoes.

The two principal rivals fought it out with fists on Sunday. After school the Fulton school was stirred with the report that Morrison planned an invasion by automobile. Hastily mobilizing an army of Fulton boys set out on the Morrison road and the caravans met just outside Fulton.

The city marshal's efforts to mediate were futile and he summoned reinforcement from Morrison, the county seat. The battle was kept secret until a check of the bruised heads here brought it out.

Why Physicians Recommend Bisurated Magnesia For Stomach Trouble

"Take a little magnesia after meals" is now a favorite indigestion prescription among thousands. The reason for this lies in the fact that practically ninety per cent of all stomach trouble is caused by an excess acid in the stomach which irritates and inflames the delicate mucous membrane lining of the stomach and makes natural digestion impossible. Medicines, drugs and diets all fail simply because they do not remove the acid, the cause of all the trouble. The value of Bisurated Magnesia, which is neither a medicine nor a drug in the ordinary meaning, lies in the fact that it almost instantly neutralizes this acid. One teaspoonful or three tablets of Bisurated Magnesia taken with a little hot water after meals promptly stops souring and fermentation of the food, keeps the stomach sweet and insures a painless natural digestion. Pure Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist and stomach sufferers should give it a trial.

McSWINEY DIED FOR REPUBLIC, SAYS WIDOW

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Sept. 28.—"My husband did not starve himself to death for the Irish Free State," the colleen widow of Lord Mayor Terrance MacSwiney of Cork, who died on a hunger strike in a British prison, said today before starting her three months' tour of America in the cause of the "Irish Republic."

"It was not for the Free State that my husband and his compatriots gave their lives—but for Ireland's complete emancipation. I have come to America to tell this country the truth about the Irish situation and the hideous treachery of the British. I have also come to secure aid for the wives and children of the soldiers of the republic. In my lectures I will tell the unvarnished truth, and will ask donations for the aid of Ireland's destitute.

END OF STRIFE NEAR.

"There is but one thing in my life or in any of our lives, 'the republic'—and we will fight and die for it."

In the pretty face of Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney the spirit of oppressed Ireland flamed as she spoke.

"This year will see the end of the Irish wars, I believe. England must see that we are determined to have nothing less than complete freedom. She must realize that behind our men stand our women and behind our women our children. She must realize she can never stamp us out. England is on her last legs in the Irish question.

"The Irish Free State is the greatest curse that ever befell Ireland.

"I can forgive England everything but the Free State. I can forgive her my husband's death, the deaths of my many friends, but I cannot forgive the way she bluffed our representatives and forced the Free State unwillingly upon them.

GRIFFITH HEART-BROKEN.

"I think Arthur Griffith died of a broken heart because he realized that he had been fooled into accepting the Free State. It was something strictly against his every principle and he was growing old. We admired Griffith a great deal, even though he stood against our principles, and we mourn him."

EATS FIRE ON $2 BET; CAN'T COLLECT

New York, Sept. 28.—"The Great Nicholas," fire-eater, equilibrist and acrobat, was getting along all right until he wandered down to the East Side to buy a lamp for use in his performances. That was where he met Harry Ignatz and trouble at the same time.

Ignatz scoffed at the offer of "The Great Nicholas" to eat the lighted lamp and masticate the flames. He went further and bet the magician $2 that he couldn't do any such thing. The argument over the refusal of Ignatz to pay the bet brought Nicholas and himself to a Magistrate's Court. There Ignatz had to pay the $2 bet and another dollar fine for being "so fresh," as the magistrate put it.

Pastor Punched Other Cheek, Says Wife

CAVE MAN MINISTER DIVORCED

Hopedale Woman Tells of Horsewhipping and Choking Threats

In his church, the Hopedale Union Church the Rev. Norman Brighton preached the injunction to turn the other cheek.

Testifying today in her suit for divorce, Mrs. Margaret R. Brighton of Boston, related specific instances in which her clerical spouse made her turn the other cheek, and walloped it.

Before Judge Elias B. Bishop in the Superior Court at Worcester Mrs. Brighton told how, in July 1920 her husband threatened to throw her downstairs. In October of 1921, she said, her caveman pastor-husband [illegible] pinned her against the wall. Shortly afterward she told the court, the Rev. Mr. Brighton threatened to horsewhip her and told her that if this didn't chasten her spirit he might have to horse-[illegible]

Mrs. Brighton was given a divorce on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. She was awarded the custody of three minor children.

EARL ALBAN.

Earl Alban from Columbus O has bit the high cost of traveling a terrific wallop. He is "all set" in the entering class at Boston University after traveling 7,250 miles over this country at net cost of $8. And that went for food.

Out of all the 7,250 miles Alban had to walk a bit less than forty miles. Most of his journey was made in automobiles that picked him up on the road. His longest single lift of that kind was 270 miles, from New York to Boston.

NEW WAR ON BUCKET SHOPS

Removal of Tickers From Two Marks Allen's Attack in Boston

Removal of the "ticker" service from the offices of two Boston brokers is the first step in a campaign by Attorney-General Allen against the biggest partial payment brokerage house in New England.

The two firms, as announced in the Boston American yesterday, are John R. Kelty & Co., No. 68 Devonshire street, and Edward Brady & Co., No. 45 Devonshire street.

Ticker service of certain local offices was removed by the New York Stock Exchange at the request of Attorney-General Allen.

READY FOR ACTION.

Further, immediately after the Attorney-General's special Grand Jury completes its findings on the closed trust companies it will take up an investigation of the local "bucket shops." Already the investigation is under way, and a mass of data is in possession of the Attorney-General, ready to be placed before the Grand Jury.

Things have been brewing on State street for several months. The start of the feverish excitement came when a well known financier dropped out of a firm and left underlings holding the bag. This resulted in the suicide of one of the "bag holders."

Then came the war between reputable brokers both in the Exchange and on the Curb against firms which are "bucketing" as all the Street knows, even though no actual charges have yet been made.

DECLARE WOMEN SELL RUM

Beverly Police Open Crusade on Drinking in City Hall Women's Room

Discovery of empty whiskey bottles and paper cups containing a residue of liquor in the women's comfort station, beneath the steps of the city hall, prompted an investigation.

This investigation resulted in the discovery that women have been making a business of using the comfort station to sell liquor, and that transactions of considerable size have been consummated there.

When the officers first investigated the place, they found an odor resembling that of a distillery pervading the place. The empty bottles were lying about under radiators, behind washstands and in waste baskets.

Paper drinking cups, containing drops of whiskey in the bottom smelling of moonshine, were also found. The floor, moreover, was strewn with cigarette butts.

Former Actress Wins Fight for Child

Master Finds She Can Give Girl Better Care Than Father.

Mother of Arline Tellis left her husband when she learned that he had married her before his divorce became absolute.

MRS. DORIS TELLIS

COURT DENIES GIRL TO HER FATHER

The cloud of litigation which has hovered over the head of six-year-old Arline Tellis has been lifted.

Michael J. Doyle appointed by the Supreme Court to hear the evidence in the petition of James J. Gannon, who asked for the custody of Arline, reported that in his opinion Gannon's petition should be dismissed.

Mr. Doyle said that the child [illegible] in the custody of her mother, Mrs. Doris Tellis, appeared to be well cared for and happy, and that she is in better care now than she would be if Gannon were to be awarded her custody.

Gannon filed the petition following a petition filed by Mrs. Tellis for an increase in the amount paid by Gannon for the support of the child. The marriage of Gannon and Mrs. Tellis, then Doris Bliss, an actress, which took place in 1916 was annulled in June, 1918, when it was learned that Gannon's first divorce from his wife had not become absolute.

Mrs. Tellis said:

"I was disillusioned shortly after my marriage to Gannon when he began to drink. I tried to [illegible] [illegible] until Arline was born. I [illegible] [illegible] after her birth in 1916 that I discovered our marriage was not legal. I [illegible] with Arline [illegible] [illegible] and since then I have not lived with Gannon. I had the marriage annulled at once and the court legitimatized the child.

"Now that Mr. Doyle has reported that she should be awarded to me my mother and I are going to take the best of care of her. We are going to give her an education and look out for her future."

BAY STATE EASY FOR GOUGING PACKERS

State Commission Calls on the People to Raise Their Own Cattle

The Commission on the Necessaries of Life today declared the prices of meat in Massachusetts appear to be higher than in any other section of the country.

Higher than New York! Higher than Philadelphia! Higher than the other sister cities along the Atlantic seaboard and a mile higher than Seattle, for example, where a slice of round steak can be bought for 27 cents, as compared with the 47 cents charged here in Boston.

The Commission threw in the word "appears" to be higher because it expects the packers will be on the job tomorrow with a statement to the effect that the fussy epicureans of Boston demand more expensive cuts of meat than elsewhere in the country.

THESE FIGURES TALK

Here are the prices quoted from the July bulletin of the United States Department of Labor.

The commission wants the people to advise it whether the high prices of meat can be cut by establishing local slaughterhouses throughout the State. There has been a great deal of investigating but no real action, the commission said. It wants to be able to say "yes" or "no" to the next Legislature.

INDUSTRY DECLINES.

Said the commission:

"The raising of livestock as indicated by the number of animals has been declining steadily in Massachusetts, while in the last twenty years the population has increased from [illegible] in 1901 to 2,86[illegible] in 1921.

ORPHANS ENJOY WEIRD MAGIC OF THURSTON

Five hundred orphan boys and girls of Boston were guests of the Boston American this afternoon at the entertainment of mystery and legerdemain which is being given by Thurston, the magician, who performed his bewildering repertoire of tricks for the children.

The orphans were met at the theatre entrance by the magician with a few preliminary tricks. When the boys and girls were seated and the curtain had risen, Jane, the ten year-old daughter of the wizard came on the stage with greeting

"On behalf of the Boston American and my Daddy I want you all to be welcome. There are lots of new things for children that you never saw before. I want you to see my dog Bob, and Jane, the lion and the others. You will see Daddy catch pigeons out of the air. Look out for his hands when he touches you. He will bring a rabbit out of your pocket."

BEWILDERING TRICKS.

The children gazed with pop-eyed wonder while Thurston performed his wonderful tricks. It was a day of days in their orphaned lives.

The institutions and organizations from which the children came included the Home for Italian Children, Morgan Memorial, Home for Destitute Catholic Children, Home for Jewish Children, House of the Angel Guardian, New England Home for Little Wanderers, Salvation Army and Volunteers of America.

Dr. W. Randolph Angell, No. 43 Commonwealth avenue, was present to render any professional services that might be needed in a gathering of so many children.

WOULD END SECRET SCHOOL SOCIETIES

New York, Sept. 27.—The State Commissioner of Education was urged in a resolution adopted by the Board of Education to seek passage of a law at the next session of the Legislature abolishing secret societies in the high schools of the State.

Commissioner Harry B. Chambers, chairman of the board's law committee, submitted a report which stated that high school principals held the opinion that such societies "form in the school a little aristocracy with its snobbery and favoritism and discrimination," and should not be permitted to exist.

Questions Record

FRANK CALIRI

Began his career as a barber in Sicily, at the tender age of five years and now is willing to back his ability to give a quick shave. But doubts possibility of 6-minute record.

6-MINUTE SHAVE STIRS CALIRI TO PROTEST

Frank Caliri, who at one time attained more or less fame as the youngest barber in the world, wandered into the editorial rooms of the Boston American to announce that, being sportively inclined, he would like to place a little wager.

Frank, it seems, does not share in the enthusiasm that was aroused when William Cassiano of Bow street, Everett, succeeded in shaving a customer in six minutes.

He declares that Cassiano "fudged" in the contest where he made his record, picking his customer in advance and giving him some beforehand touches on the night preceding the contest. He, Frank, scorned to do this, and as a result consumed twelve minutes in taking care of his customer.

Now, says Frank, no honest barber can shave a man in six minutes. He, Frank, is willing to wager $1,000 that Cassiano, in particular, cannot do it. All that he asks is a fair field and no favors, a four-day's beard on the customer, and competent judges selected by the Boston American.

Caliri began his career as a barber back in Sicily at the tender age of five years. He is now conducting the Sunshine Beauty Parlor at No. 178 Canal street.

STEAL AND WRECK GIRL'S NEW AUTO

Lottie Aronson's brand new touring car sped along the road in glistening splendor. That was yesterday, but—

Today Lottie's brand new car is a twisted mass of wreckage from which nothing resembling a car can ever be fashioned.

Meantime Lottie is wondering just how come. So are the Weston police.

Early today the car crashed against a tree at Sears Corner, Central avenue, Weston. Three men who were riding in it fled, one with a broken arm. They had been speeding.

Miss Aronson lives on Parkman street, Brookline.

GIRL OF SIX DEFIES RAGING BULL

New Durham, N. J., Sept. 28.—Here's a story about a ragin', snortin' bull and the little girl with the hypnotic stare, as told by the folks hereabouts.

Albert Hangley, a dairy farmer, who owns a large herd of cows and a brace of bulls, has a six-year-old daughter, Sarah by name.

Sarah went strolling through the pastures wearing her red sweater. Suddenly the bull came tearing across the field straight for Sarah.

The animal came to a halt, gave a snort or two, and seeing the little girl wasn't afraid of him, started to romp away. The little heroine gamboled along with him and gave his nozzle a little tender rubbing.

CREW WILL BET MAYFLOWER CAN BEAT 'EM ALL

There is $3,000 aboard the Mayflower that says she can defeat any other fishing schooner afloat. Members of the crew let it be known today that they are ready to wage that amount on their craft.

The Mayflower left here about three weeks ago for the "Banks" and returned yesterday with a 133,000-pound catch. The vessel had previously been ordered to return on September 24 in order that they would have ample time to prepare for the race if she had been allowed to compete. Today there were five "riggers" from shore tightening the rigging.

"We've been out nearly two years and have brought in as much as 225,000 pounds in one catch," said a member of the crew. "If you don't call that fishing I'd like to know what it is."

"And what's more," volunteered another, "there is some talk about Bluenose bunch wanting to bet us $1,000 that they can beat us. You tell them for us to send the money on and we'll cover it two for one."

GIRL TO SPEND 25 HOURS IN 'BLACK HOLE'

Twenty-five hours in the 'Black Hole' of the old convict ship "Success," now on exhibition at Warren Bridge, will assure little Miss Sallie Coulter of the Franklin square house of being financially able to finish her second year at Emerson College.

She was selected from more than 200 applicants who stormed the famous old felon craft for a chance to earn $100 in gold by spending 25 hours in the solitary cell below the water line.

Dr. James B. Thornton of Huntington avenue, who examined the applicants, adjudged her in best physical and mental condition to stand the strain.

Wedged in among oddly assorted specimens of femininity, who battled at the gate from early morning to get aboard the ship, Miss Coulter came very near losing courage, she admitted.

"But that $100 means so much to me I simply wouldn't quit," she explained.

"You see I taught school for two years in my home town in Illinois in order to come here last year to attend college. In order to come this year I had to borrow $300 from my younger sister, Florence, who is teaching school herself now, in preparation for college."

Miss Coulter will be chained with handcuffs in solitary confinement in the infamous solitary cell. She will wear the regulation British convict garb, and live on bread and water. She will be allowed one hour's exercise during the entire period.

Should she lose courage before starting the test her place will be taken by Miss Ruth Irving of Allston, selected as the second most courageous subject.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair "Use Mulsified"

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

The Peerless Queen Anne

The Queen Anne Sonora is a master-work.

Like the great creative artists of the world, Sonora experts have concentrated on the soul of the phonograph. That soul is its tone, endlessly developed and perfected in the Sonora by subtle refinements through which the dead record is transformed into warm, life-like, pulsating sound.

By means of scientific experiments in the free use of wood—Nature's truest resonator—Sonora artisans have eliminated the shrill, harsh, nasal sounds long associated with most phonographs. The all-wood, laminated horn, made of from five to fifteen thick, cross-banded veneers, makes the Sonora rendition often more flawless than the original.

Thoughts For Mothers Who Wish To Safeguard Their Families

There is a simple, inexpensive way that 300 000 mothers have of providing a safeguard against colds, coughs, hoarseness, spasmodic croup, and catarrhal ailments. These ailments are not serious if given prompt attention, but many a mother mourns the loss of a dear one from pneumonia, diphtheria or influenza.

"A stitch in time saves nine" is a truism as it relates to a common cold. First avoid any medicine containing chloroform or opiates of any kind. Such medicines are not necessary and may do more harm than good.

Devoted mothers save about $2.00, and make a pure, effective medicine at home and avoid expense and anxiety. They purchase 2½ ozs. of the pure concentrated Essence Mentho-Laxene, then make a syrup of sugar and water and have a full pint of the very best cough syrup to be obtained at a cost of less than $1.00.

A few doses given when a cold or cough first starts, soon checks it and drives it out of the system and the danger of pneumonia and other fatal or lingering disease is avoided. Plain directions come with the Essence Mentho-Laxene, so simple and easy that a child could make a full pint in less than 12 minutes. Good dealers and druggists recommend it.

SID MERCER, who has trailed along with the Yankees since the kick-off, will also report the series for the Boston American.

As for pictures, you will have the same high class service that this newspaper gave its readers at the Leonard-Tendler bout. It will be remembered that on that occasion the Boston American published a full page of action pictures hours before any other Boston newspaper published a single photograph of the title contest.

CARPENTIER WASN'T THE VICTIM OF A FOUL

By FORBES W. FAIRBAIRN.

London, Sept. 28.—Georges Carpentier was not the victim of a foul in his fight with Siki at Paris last Sunday. He was beaten by a better man, a harder hitter and craftier boxer.

This is the verdict of leading London sportsmen following a view of the fight film.

Nowhere in the much discussed sixth round does the picture show that the negro either deliberately or unwittingly fouled the Frenchman, British sportsmen asserted.

Gene Corri, world famous referee, said:

"The film proves that Siki is a much better boxer than we have been led to suppose. He is very clever at defensive, a good infighter. I do not regard the incident in the sixth round as a foul."

Ted "Kid" Lewis, whom Carpentier knocked out in the first round, said:

"From the first to the last the negro was Carpentier's superior. He was too crafty and strong for the Frenchman. There was no tripping. He won by a fair knockout."

Major Arnold Wilson, England's leading promoter, who witnessed the fight, declared, however, that Carpentier was the victim of foul tactics. He says that he is going to match Siki with the winner of the Moran-Beckett fight, and the winner of that match with Carpentier.

Major Wilson will also try to arrange a return match of the negro and the Frenchman in London.

JACK SAVAGE AND BARTFIELD WINNERS

Jack Savage of Boston knocked out Jimmy Karr of Pawtucket in four rounds.

New Haven Defeats Baltimore in Series

New Haven, Sept. 28.—New Haven's champion Eastern League team put it over Jack Dunn's International League champion Baltimores in the second and deciding game of their short post-season series and Dunn's high-pitched, squeaky voice could be heard all over the City of Elms as he excoriated the Orioles.

The New Haven bunch won by a wonderful ninth-inning rally. The score was six to five, but one run is as good as a hundred when it means victory and the Oystertown men are wild with chagrin.

Last year the Orioles were swamped by the Louisville Colonels in the post-season clash. Dunn must sell his stars, including Jack Bentley, and there can be no more talk of a major league franchise for the big Maryland city.

Pinky Hargraves, the New Haven catcher, pounded out a home run in the ninth inning with the bases full.

New Haven will try to meet the Minneapolis, American Association champions, and the Pacific Coast champions, on the ground that it has defeated the International League champions.

McNAMARA OUT FOR FOOTBALL AT DEAN

John R. McNamara, all-around star athlete who was graduated from the Lexington High School last June has entered Dean Academy at Franklin. "Denny" as McNamara is familiarly known, was captain of the Lexington High School football eleven last Fall and played a snappy game at quarterback and should make a good man for the Dean gridiron outfit.

Officers elected for the senior class of the School of Education of Boston University are as follows: Irving Chatterton of Scituate, president; Ralph Wilkins of Providence, R. I., vice president; Harriet Clark of West Medford, treasurer, and Jane Raymond of Roxbury, secretary.

A last minute cancellation by Arlington High has left Coach Billy Joyce of Lynn Classical High without a game for Saturday. He would like to arrange a contest with any high school having an open date on the week-end.

DARTMOUTH TO RAISE SKI TRESTLE

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 28—Dartmouth's eighty-five foot ski-jump trestle is not high enough and plans have been completed to raise the trestle ten feet. The work will be completed in time for the intercollegiate ski-jumping contests at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival.

With the added height it is expected that jumps of between 150 and 170 feet can be made, whereas the best jump made last year was 134 feet, while the best jump in which the jumper kept his feet was 121 feet.

The new jump was built last year at a cost of $5 000. It stands on the edge of a valley which is nearly [illegible] feet deep, giving a run way before the jump of about 200 feet. The added ten feet will greatly increase the speed of the jumpers.

SHEVLIN AND SHADE ARE SIGNED UP FOR BIG SLUGFEST HERE

WELTERS TO CLASH IN TUSSLE AT ARENA

By JACK CONWAY.

Eddie Shevlin against Dave Shade!

You are offered this welterweight elastic by the Arena A. C. It will [illegible] on October 9

Battling Shr and other ring tonnage will be forgotten by [illegible] New England fans until Shevlin and Shade [illegible] their [illegible] Eddie and Dave are the [illegible] best welterweights with the [illegible] of Champion Jack Britton

The [illegible] of the welterweight division will be obliged to [illegible] with the winner of the Shevlin-Shade affair or admit he is a fake title holder

Boston promoters have been trying for a year to match Shevlin and Shade. Leo Flynn, Shade's manager, has been eager to close with Billy Henderson, Shevlin's pilot.

But Henderson has refused to talk business with Flynn. All because Leo refused to give Shevlin a Madison Square date when he was making the bookings for Tex Rickard Henderson then became manager of Lee Anderson, colored light-heavyweight. Billy wanted a Norfolk bout for Anderson And Flynn manages Norfolk.

Wise Leo then played the part of the diplomat. He intimated that if Henderson would [illegible] to battle Shade that he would consider allowing Norfolk to quarrel with Anderson

The rival managers [illegible] the proposed bouts would draw big gates

And money talks

So the [illegible]

Norfolk fought Anderson and won

And now [illegible] chance [illegible]

What will be the result?

As easy as it would be to tell whether [illegible] could beat Harry Greb, Kid Norfolk or Lee Anderson

Shade has proved a wonder [illegible] He has a fifteen-round draw to his credit with [illegible] has beaten Nate Siegel and Paul Doyle [illegible]

As for Shevlin he has the victory [illegible] He also has [illegible] This is the greatest [illegible] for any body whether he is a boxer or a bank president. One with brains succeeds as easily as the warm sun of Spring melts the Winter's ice and snow.

Shevlin says he will beat Shade. He will rely as much for victory upon the power of his brain as he will upon his speed, strength and punching power.

It is unfortunate that Shevlin and Shade are battling on October 9, as on the following evening Jock Malone and Johnny Karr are due to mingle in a ten-round tussle under the direction of the Armory A. A. at [illegible] Building.

The Armory A. A. is Boston's oldest boxing club. It operated in the days when promoters required courage to combat the police and reform elements. If it had not been for the courageous fight wagered by the Armory A. A. back in the dark days of Boston boxing, the ring game would never have been legalized in this State. The Armory Club officials were arrested, placed on trial before a jury. They put up a battle and won. Their victory made it possible for boxing to live and flourish in this city.

Knotty Wrestler Ties Himself Up on Mat to String Rivals

Giant Cossack to Battle Greek Strong Man in Feature Bout at G. O. H.

By RINGSIDE

Ivan Michailoff and his famous hand spring will make an attempt to knock George Kotsonaros right out of the wrestling picture at the Grand Opera House this evening.

Ivan's hand spring is more deadly than it is to let a gay young flap take a flock of blank checks after you have put your name on the "sign here" line. Ivan's unique style of milling has enabled him to crush the championship hopes of a large number of mat stars.

Possibly Ivan found it necessary to invent an ingenious defence when he was parading around as one of the bodyguards of the late Czar. Anyhow the Cossack has done well enough to win a position in the front ranks of the mat world.

HOW HAND SPRING WORKS

And here's how the hand spring works.

Ivan goes bravely forth to battle with Strangler Lewis, Stanislaus Zbyszko, Wladek Zbyszko, Joe Stecker or whoever his opponent may be. There is a struggle to get a winning hold.

Finally the grapplers land in a heap upon the mat. The other fellow grabs hold of Michailoff. The latter immediately crosses his own feet and doubles up, seizing his feet with his hands. He really has to get a toe hold on himself.

This makes it impossible for Ivan's opponent to get a winning hold on the Cossack's legs or feet. The struggle then begins in earnest. Ivan, doubled up like a jackknife, battles on grimly His hands tightly clutch to his crossed feet. Ivan's opponent begins to tire.

Then like a bolt from the blue, Ivan releases his grip on his own feet, lets his feet drive forward and his body bolt backwards. The result is that the Cossack shatters his opponent's hold, whirls across the ring himself and usually sends his rival reeling on the mat as a result of a thrust from one of Ivan's feet which shoot forward like a shell released from one of the French 75'5.

The Greek's friends, who have cheered lustily as he has won two straight bouts at the Grand Opera House, say Ivan is doomed to be disappointed.

Veteran followers of the mat game, however, who have been thrilled as Michailoff has conquered some of the leading wrestlers in the world by his unique style of battling, declare that the Greek champion is doomed to go down to defeat.

Paul Bowser will appear in the semi-final at the same show with Frank Dutcher as an opponent.

Another bout will bring together Louis Bartles and Young Gotch.

All contests will be to a positive finish.

GENARO WILL FIGHT RUSSELL ON OCT. 5

Smoky City Officially On Scroll Of Fandom

Pittsburgh, Sept. 28.—The city of Pittsburgh officially was listed on scroll of baseball fandom.

A large scoreboard will be erected in front of the city county building in the heart of the business section and traffic will be re-routed while the battles are on.

FAST TEAM WILL TAKE FIELD AT REVERE

By FRED C. LANE.

Revere High School, that troublesome little spot in the North Shore League, is back in the field again this year with a football team that will make the best in this league travel fast to win. Coach Bob Keefe is not predicting a championship, but guarantees the best showing of any football team wearing the colors of the seashore school.

There is little doubt in the minds of scholastic followers in this town that something startling is due for the North Shore League coaches. The stubborn resistance and fighting spirit of the 1921 Revere team is still fresh in the minds of those closely connected with scholastic sports.

Down in the muck, scorned by their opponents for years, the snappy fighting spirit of Coach Keefe was instilled into his handful of candidates last Fall and ere the season was brought to a climax the praise of the team was sung by all.

To better the record of last season is the goal of Coach Keefe. Because of the team's fine showing last Fall, the school spirit has been aroused and a goodly number of lads are out for berths on the eleven.

Revere will have a strong line this year, something that was lacking in the general make-up other years. The boys on the first defence will average about 150 pounds.

In addition two veteran backfield boys will be on hand Andrew Cataldo, the fullback, and R. Hurwich, last year's right half, are on deck to gather in some of the glory that is coming their way.

Not since Neal Harrington was a member of the high school team has Revere High boosted of a kicker until a young star, named Koines, made his appearance in togs this Fall. In practise he has been getting off punts averaging 50 yards. To add to his fine qualities, he has promised to carry off all laurels as a drop kicker before the curtain is rung down.

Epstein, a new hand at the game seeking the quarterback position, has shown promising traits. He is a fast lad in running back punts and to add to his merits has displayed the ability to reverse his field, something that has been lacking in the general run of scholastic backfield men.

Coach Keefe has another week in which to drill his charges before opening up with Lynn English on October 7. Except for a change here and there the following lads will line up against Coach George Sexton's boys. Goodman, left end, Ryan, left tackle; Murrey, left guard; Fiterman, center, Crutchfield, right guard; H. Hurwitch, right tackle; L. Cataldo, right end; Epstein, quarter; R. Hurwitch, left half, Koines, right half and A. Cataldo full back.

There is much speculation among scholastic fans at Norwood High as to the ability of this year's football team to repeat the performance of the 1921 eleven. It is a question that has been talked over in every section of the town. Coach Benny Murrey, who is best posted on the subject, refuses to answer one way or the other

The cause for Coach Murrey's refusal to talk on the matter may be laid to the fact that only six men of that winning organization are eligible for football work this year.

Norwood will not have a line the equal of last year's first defence. Graduations are the cause of this handicap, making the possibility of winning ten games without a defeat look dubious

TWO MORE GRID STARS JOIN B. C. SQUAD OF CRIPPLES

ELBERRY AND M'MANUS FORCED TO LAY OFF

Scrimmage practice for the Boston College squad was not so strenuous, as the last few sessions have dented up several of the regular team. "Cupie" Elberry and McManus, tackles on the first eleven, are now on the injured list. Elberry hurt his shoulder Tuesday but the injury was not thought serious at the time. Yesterday "Cupie" did not report for practice, and the condition of his shoulder is such that he is not expected back for at least a week.

Art McManus strained his back yesterday, and will be out for a few days. It is hoped that both men will be back in time for the B. U. game, which will be played a week from Saturday.

"Chuck" Darling is constantly improving his kicking, and yesterday sent the pigskin sailing consistently for close to sixty yards.

Donnellan returned to the game and directed the play for the second team. Donnellan, despite his ankle, which still bothers him a little, booted the ball in his old-time style, his punts rivalling those of Darling in height and distance.

Most of the practice session was devoted to the rehearsing of new plays. Ward and Cronin, the sturdy brace of first team halfbacks, continued the same style of slashing line plunges that has attracted so much attention this Fall.

MORE INJURIES HIT GREEN SQUAD

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 28.—More injuries have hit the Dartmouth football squad. Red Hoag and Ozzy Siegfried, who alternated at fullback on last year's team, received badly sprained ankles and were carried off the field. The injured list, which has been mounting steadily for the past week, has given the coaches a hard task to fill the guard, end and fullback positions.

Hoag, Siegfried and Smith are the fullback cripples, although Coach Cannell had been using Siegfred as a halfback lately. Swanson and Murphy, guards; Lynch and Bjorkman, regular ends, and Johnny Allen, halfback, complete the hospital list.

Watkins and Hagenbuckle were tried out at end on team A in its scrimmage against team B and then against Billy Streng's scrub team. Both worked fairly well. Leavitt, freshman fullback last year, must play full against Norwich, with Foster, an inexperienced man, the only man in reserve. Taylor, Sweetser, Cubbins and Hurd, none of whom have been playing impressive football, are the only guards available.

Leavitt, Calder and Burke, carrying the ball in the scrimmage, performed brilliantly and somewhat took away the drama, note which injuries had been casting on the practice.

ST. PATRICK'S OUT FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

The manager of the St. Patrick's Catholic Club of Roxbury wishes to announce that his team goes on the gridiron this Fall with the intention of walking off with the 115-120 pound championship of the State. This team is composed of youths residing in the vicinity of the St. Patrick's Church. Up until last season the St. Pats never felt the sting of defeat, having been beaten only twice and they are willing to meet the same two teams this season to reverse the decision.

The St. Patrick's are trying to get the services of Tom Kirby, the popular fighter of Roxbury. Teams who desire to arrange games please communicate at once with Caesar Dwyer, No. 6 Marshfield street, Roxbury.

SIMON PURES IN BATTLES AT ST. JOSEPH'S

The stage is all set for one of the biggest amateur shows conducted by the St. Joseph's T. A. S. Secretary Hannon says the largest entry list ever received will compel President William H. Cuddy to start the show at 8 o'clock sharp.

The tournament, the second of the season, will be held tomorrow night at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square.

More interest has been shown by the followers of amateur boxing than at any time in many seasons and for this reason it is expected that a capacity throng will be on hand.

With the amateur tournaments showing plenty of new performers as well as the old favorites, these tourneys seem to be succeeding the professional shows. Interest is dying out in the bouts between money chasers while the amateur bouts are forced to turn away spectators at every tournament.

With boxing on a firm basis in colleges and schools as well as in the army and navy, the directors of amateur boxing predict that the present season will be the most successful in the history of the game.

Bouts are scheduled in five different classes tomorrow night. The classes will include 112, 118, 126, 135 and 147 pounds. Entries will close tonight with Frank Hannon, No. 35 Cambridge street, although post entries will be received at the club.

BILL BRENNAN ON THE SICK LIST

Bill Brennan cancelled his twelve-round decision bout with Bob Martin scheduled for Columbus, O., on account of laryngitis.

Brennan has not been in very good condition for some time, but still has hopes of getting another shot at Dempsey.

FRIEDMAN EAGER TO SHOW UP VILLA

Abe Friedman, New England bantamweight champion, has his sails set for a bout with Pancho Villa, new flyweight champion. Villa recently won for himself a flock of glory, not to mention a tidy pot of gold when he knocked out Johnny Buff.

Abe Friedman

Friedman has been trying to land a tussle with Joe Lynch, world's bantamweight king, but has been unsuccessful. Lynch says Eddie Mack does not care to have anything to do with Friedman's game.

Friedman has won his last six starts, Danny Edwards and Irish Johnny Curtin being listed among his victims.

As Friedman is the best boxer in the bantamweight division and also has youth on his side he would have an even chance of winning over Villa.

JOHNSON OKAYED FOR WILLS BOUT

New York, Sept. 28.—After passing in review before members of the New York State Athletic Commission in a gymnasium workout, Clem Johnson, giant negro from British Guiana, was given official sanction to meet Harry Wills tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden. In his tryout Johnson faced Jordan Stanton, an unknown, Jack Renault, the Canadian, and Young Godfrey, a protege of Jack [illegible], in brief bouts.

GARDNERS TO CLASH WITH THE BURRELLS

All roads will lead to the Shirley street grounds Sunday afternoon, when the Gardner A. A. of South Boston clash with the Burrell A. C. of Roxbury. Interest runs high in this contest, because both teams are out for the State championship in the 120 pound class, and because it is also the first game of the season for both teams and each is desirous of winning their first contest.

Captain Marlow thinks he can lead a squad composed of such stars as the Walsh brothers and Bobbie Donovan, and return to South Boston with a victory over the Burrells. The Gardner A. A. were known as the Farraguts last season, and they are out to better the record made by that team last year.

New York, Sept. 28.—The largest world series bet recorded to date has been made on the Yankees at odds of 7 to 5. The wager was made by Jay O'Brien, who laid $2,700 against $2,000 that the American Leaguers would win. These are the prevailing odds, although some are holding out for 8 to 5 and better.

A commission of $2,500 to be placed at the prevailing odds has been received by Jack Doyle from Baron Long of California.

CLINTON-SACCO BATTLE A DRAW

It's a long way from Portland, Ore., to East Boston, but good news like ill tidings travel fast. It is known that Jimmy Sacco, quite a favorite in the Noddle Island district, battled to a draw with Johnny Clinton, former New England lightweight champion, at Portland. Sacco, like Clinton, is campaigning out on the Coast. Both fighters hope to pile up a flock of victories before they give the fans along Tremont street the once over again.

SIKI GETS OFFERS FOR TWO BOUTS

New York, Sept. 28.—Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker of the Republic A. C., has boosted his original proposition to Battling Siki, the Senegalese conqueror of Georges Carpentier, by again cabling and offering him 600,000 francs to come over and box Harry Wills at the Polo Grounds on October 26 or 400,000 francs for a battle with Harry Greb for the world's light-heavyweight championship on the date mentioned.

Battling Siki

O'Rourke's second cable, which, by the way, is said to be the only real offer thus far made for Siki's services, is far above the original one. Siki's manager asked for 1,000,000 francs to meet Wills, but O'Rourke hopes to land him for 600,000 francs, which is equivalent to $45,000. The 400,000 francs offered for a Greb match would net the Senegalese battler $30,000.

COLUMBIA, GREEN AND TIGERS STEP OUT

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Somewhat more than customary interest concerns itself with the football elevens of Princeton, Columbia and Dartmouth as they step off this week for the first time in the 1922 season.

Things have happened at each of the three institutions since the boys took their last gymnasium shower bath in November, 1921.

At Princeton the bulk of the football behemoths of last year have been nodded out of the picture. Five or six of them drew sheepskins last June, two or three more failed to satisfy teacher they had learned their lessons, two or three more carelessly neglected to file the proper income returns with the faculty revenue officer, and about the only Tiger regular to report for duty this Fall is the non-playing student manager of the Princeton team.

At Columbia Coach "Buck" O'Neil failed to get an extension on his attractive contract and consequently facing the job of producing a winner this year or seeking less fertile football fields, is certain to outdo his past efforts, and they were notable while he was with Syracuse.

Several "Transfers" At Princeton

It is a new experience for Coach Bill Roper of Princeton to enter upon a season so badly off in first class football material. He has available, it is true, Herb Treat, the Holy Cross, ex-Boston College tackle, Roger Howe, ex-Lafayette halfback, Robert Carney, ex-Lafayette end, and Ralph Hills, the big weight man who entered Tech last Fall and two or three weeks later switched to Princeton, but he has very few men of any considerable experience in Princeton football and none of these few was a headliner last year.

As its opening opponent Princeton faces the Johns Hopkins team, coached by Ray Van Orman, the former Cornell end and a young man who had much to do with developing the Cornell team of 1915 which defeated Eddie Mahan's Harvard eleven.

[illegible] football team last Fall notwithstanding the fact Annapolis recruit[illegible] and West Point [illegible] as sweet a backfield as Johns Hopkins ever had. And if Van Orman possesses any sort of material this Fall his Johns Hopkins boys should help establish who's who and what's what at Princeton and just what can be expected of a Roper team lacking an oversupply of made-to-order material.

Many Track Stars Report for Football

"Buck" O'Neil had a nice looking team at Columbia last Fall but its [illegible] failed to land it anywhere. Its line shaped up like a gathering of the Greek Gods but the young men seemed as agile of limb and intellect as the stone statues of said celebrities. He had a pip of a backfield man in Walter Koppish, and if Walter had not been forced to dodge and sidestep his own teammates before he could attempt dodging and sidestepping the opposing players he would have placed a Columbia name on the All America team for the first time in lo these many years.

Koppish captains the "Buck" O'Neil offering this season and as a most capable sidekick he will have Ben Roderick, ex-Boston College ace. And it would seem Coach O'Neil is to have speed in this season's team, for in addition to Koppish, who has shaded [illegible] seconds in the 440 yard run, he has six members of the Columbia track team candidating for positions.

Just what Ursinus will offer Columbia in the way of opposition on Saturday is not known. Last year this Pennsylvania school made a grand total of no points in seven games but in some unexpected fashion put over two touchdowns on Haverford thereby giving the loyal student body a chance to let the world know Ursinus boasts a long cheer.

New Offense for Dartmouth Eleven

A brand new attacking scheme is on the books at Hanover this Fall, with Larry Bankart, former coach of Colgate, Jesse Hawley, former coach of Iowa, Clarke Tobin, former coach of Tufts, Jack Ryan, former coach of Marquette, Jack McAuliffe, former coach of Colby, Paul "Red" Loudon, former All-America end, Jim Robertson, last season's Dartmouth captain, and several other prominent ex-Dartmouth stars, aiding or advising or directing Head Coach Jackson Cannell in the "lowdown" of the innovation.

The old Dartmouth shift has been discarded according to report. In view of the new rule interpretation on shift plays this is as it should be, for the very definite pause now required between the shifting and the starting of the play markedly reduced its effectiveness.

What type of offense will take its place will be revealed for the first time to the Norwich eleven which opposes the Green on Saturday afternoon.

Man and Maid

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

Sir Nicholas Thormonde, a wealthy Englishman, wounded and blinded in one eye in action, starts writing his diary in Paris while the war is still on. He is sick of life. The war has robbed it of all that a young man can find of joy. He tries to amuse himself in the company of several women friends, who, he feels, seek his company for his money and not for the love he craves. He starts to write a book and hires a typist, Miss Sharp. He begins to fall in love with her.

Now Go On With the Story

BEFORE I opened the cheque book or even took it up I knew something had happened which had changed her again.

Her manner had its old icy respect as of a person employed, all the friendliness which had been growing in the last two or three days had completely departed. I could not imagine why.

She put the cheque book open, and handed me a pen to sign with, and then I signed the dozen that she had filled in and tore them off as I did so. She was silent, and when I had finished she took them, saying casually that she would bring the corrected chapter typed again on Thursday, and was now going to catch her train—and before I could reply, she had gone into the other room.

A frightful sense of depression fell upon me. What could it possibly be?

Idly I picked up the cheque book—and absently fingered the leaves — then my eye caught a counterfoil where I had chanced to open it. It was not in Miss Sharp's handwriting, although this was the [illegible] cheque book which Burton usually keeps, but in my own and it was written, casually as I send it on my private account—"For Suzette 5000 francs" and the date of last Saturday — and on turning the page there was the further one of "For Suzette 3000 francs" and the date of Monday!

The irony of fate!—I had picked this cheque book up inadvertently I suppose on these two days instead of my own.

It is quite useless for me to comment on the utterly annoying circumstances of that mixup of cheque books—Such things are fate—and fate I am beginning to believe is nothing but a reflex of our own actions. If Suzette had not been my little friend I should not have given her eight thousand francs, but as she has been—and [illegible] I must stand by the consequences.

After all—a man?—Well—what is the use of writing about it? I am so utterly sad and resentful that I have no words.

It is Sunday morning, and this afternoon I shall hire the one motor which can be obtained here, at a fabulous price, and go into Paris. There are some books I want to get out of my bookcase—and somehow I have lost interest here. But this morning I shall go and sit in the parish church and hear mass. I feel so completely wretched the music may comfort me and give me courage to forget all about Miss Sharp. And in my case there is a soothing atmosphere in a Roman Catholic church which is agreeable. I like the French people! They are a continual force if one takes them rightly. So filled with common sense, simply taking sentiment as an ornament and a relaxation, and never allowing it to interfere with the practical necessities of life. Ignorant people say they are hysterical, and over-passionate—they are nothing of the kind—They believe in material things, and in the "beau geste." Where they require a religion, they accept a comforting one; and meanwhile they enjoy whatever comes in their way and get through disagreeables philosophically. Vive la France!

I am waiting for the motor now—and trying to be resigned—Mass did me no good—I sat in a corner and put my crutch by me. The church itself [illegible] stories. I [illegible] Louis XV's time [illegible] much the same [illegible] And life was [illegible] and [illegible] than [illegible] sense of [illegible]

A little old [illegible] came and sat [illegible] me for [illegible] and looked at me and my crutch sympathetically.

"[illegible]" I heard her whisper to her mother. "[illegible]"

After all this affair of Miss Suzette [illegible] must know at nearly twenty-four and living in France that there are Suzettes [illegible]. What can have made her so censorious? If she took a personal interest in me it would be different—but entirely indifferent as always, how can it matter to her? As I write this, that hot sense of anger and rebellion arises in me—I'll have to keep saying to myself that I am [illegible] and I must not complain.

I [illegible] make Burton find out if Cora is really staying here, and get her to dine with me tonight—Cora always pretends to have begun for me—even when most engaged elsewhere.

Monday

Sunday was a memorable day. I went through the Bois de Marne on that bad road because the trees were so lovely, and then through the Parc de St. Cloud. Even in wartime this wonderful people can enjoy the open air.

I think [illegible] l'Angleterre lookin from the terrace of her Château over the tree tops—The poor château not a stone of which is standing today. Did she feel sentimental with her friend the Comte de Guiche—as I would [illegible] feel now? If I had someone to be sentimental with. Alas! There was an ominous hot stillness in the air, and the sky beyond the Eiffel Tower had a heavy lurid tone in it.

When we got across the river into the Bois de Boulogne it seemed as if all Paris was enjoying a holiday. I told the chauffeur to go down a side alley and go slowly, and presently I made him draw up at the side of the road. It was so hot and I wanted to rest for a little, the motion was jarring my leg.

I think I must have been half asleep, when my attention was caught by three figures coming up another by-path obliquely—the tallest of them undoubtedly Miss Sharp—but Miss Sharp as I had never seen her before!

And a boy of thirteen, and a girl of eleven were at either side of her, the boy clinging on her arm, he was lame and seemed to be a dreadfully delicate, rickety person. The little girl was very small and sickly looking too — but Miss Sharp — my 'secretary' — appeared blooming and young and lovely in her expensive foulard frock. No glasses hid her blue eyes. Her hair was not [illegible] back and screwed into a knot, it might have been dressed by a [illegible]'s maid—and her hat, the smartest thing possible, was most becoming, with the proper [illegible] look."

So that dowdy get-up is for my benefit, and is not habitual to her! Or is it that she has only one costume and keeps it for Sundays and days of fete?

In spite of my determination to put all thought of her from me, a wild emotion arose—a passionate longing to spring from the car and join her—to talk to her, and tell her how lovely I thought she was looking.

They came nearer and nearer—I could see her face was rippling with smiles at something the little brother had said. Its expression was gentle and sympathetic, and it was obvious that fond affection held all three.

The children might have been drawn by Du Maurier in Punch long ago, to express a family who were overbred. Race run to seed expressed itself in every line of them. The boy wore an Eton jacket and collar and a tall hat—and it looked quite strange in this place.

As they got close to me I could hear him cough in the hollow way which tells its own story.

I cowered down behind the hood of the motor, and they passed without seeing me—or perhaps Miss Sharp did see me but was determined not to look. I felt utterly alone and deserted by all the world—and the same nervous trembling came over me which once before made me suffer so, and again I was wet with a tear.

The humiliation of it! The disgrace of such feebleness!

When they had gone by I started forward again to watch them—I could hear the little girl cry, 'Oh! look, Alathea!' as she pointed to the sky, and then all three began to quicken their pace down another allee, in the direction of Auteuil, and were soon out of sight.

Then still quivering with emotion, I, too, glanced heavenward—Ye Gods! what a storm was coming on!

Where were they going, there in the deep wood? It was a good mile or two from the Auteuil gate. They would be soaked to the skin when the rain did commence to fall—and there was a thunderstorm beginning also—they were quite safe?

All these thoughts tormented me, and I gave the chauffeur orders to take a road I thought might cut across the path they had followed, and when we had reached the spot I made him wait.

The livid lightning rent the sky and the thunder roared like guns, and the few people in sight rushed panic-stricken in a hopeless search for shelter—far greater fear on their faces than they show at German bombs.

My chauffeur complained audibly as he got down to shut the car. Did Monsieur wish to be struck by lightning? he demanded very enraged.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES—By ANN LISLE

"GOOD morning!" she cried. "I've been just longing for 8:45 and you. I can hardly wait to tell you what a fountain of youth I've been drinking from just because I was lucky enough to meet you."

"BUT THOSE WONDERFUL BOYS TREATED ME AS IF I WERE A QUEEN— — —"

"Now, look here," I replied with frowning severity. "If you will insist on burning the candle at both ends, what can I do? I'll wager that you were jazzing around until all hours with your pet 'nephew' and his friend, and yet you've betrayed that you must have been in the office at some such unearthly hour as 8:40! So don't try to hide behind your three gray hairs, you giddy young person!"

Miss May looked crestfallen for a moment. She made me think of a stray dog that's so used to being kicked it can't fully believe a gentle stroking hand is caressing instead of chastising. But in a moment she blossomed out in the way I've had the satisfaction of seeing become more and more frequent since the day when I had the inspiration to give her an interest in the business.

"I'm forty-six," she announced suddenly in a tone that was rock-bottom reality. "But those two wonderful boys treated me as if I were a queen—or a debutante—I think Ralph Lacy actually has begun to believe we're kin. Maybe he wants to belong to some one 'most as much as I do. Anyway, he understands how I long for—folks. And he's supplied me with real ones. He's the nicest boy I ever laid eyes on, and next comes [illegible] Parkinson."

"Wait till you see my Jim," I replied. "Only I'm dreading the way you'll plunge in and vamp him."

Miss May blushed. It took all the withered sadness from her cheeks and made me realize how young forty-six may be when it's happy and has the assurance of being charming still.

"I'll wager your husband will be kind to me," she said simply. "The men you love would have nice feelings about lonely old maids. But he wouldn't have as much time for one as that adorable Lacy boy seems to think he has. You know, it seems funny to me that a fine-looking upstanding man like Ralph shouldn't be gobbled up by some lovely girl. But he and that Park act as if they don't know any girls worth a pinch o' snuff. They told me if they hadn't found me to beau around they'd have had to go on being stag everywheres."

"If we take them in hand and find girls for them"——ventured Miss May.

"Bless your heart, dear, you'd hand your boys right over to some one else just when you've found them and started to enjoy them!" I cried, deeply stirred by Miss May's utter lack of selfishness.

"Of course. Those boys need friends. You ought to have been there to hear them going on about how wonderful you are. I wish you could spare a little time for them. Especially my 'nephew.' He does admire you so much."

"I admire him, too," I agreed. "I think he's a fine man. His ability in business was the first thing that impressed me. But pretty soon I began to see that he was—real folks. I've a feeling that his friendship for our business and his interest in it are what has put us on the map."

Desert Love

by JOAN CONQUEST

"WHEN she comes back my wife," continued the voice, as the moon slowly swung up to her throne, blinding in her power the million twinkling eyes that had watched for her coming. "Yet, when she comes it will be for very love of me, her lover, and for love of the night and the scent of the dawn, for the stillness of the dusk, and the longing to lay her pure whiteness at rest within my arms."

And then he threw his hands heavenwards with a great cry.

"Allah, be praised! Oh Allah, unto thee I give thanks!"

And sank upon his knees, touching the sand with his forehead, and rising with hands outstretched strode quickly to the clump of palms near the gate in the wall surrounding [illegible] dwelling to meet three camels [illegible] upon the road leading from [illegible] towards him, one [illegible] brown with a closed palanquin swaying upon its back, the others dark brown, one laden with great skins, almost empty of water, and bundles of every size and description, the other mounted by the head keeper of camels, who, having brought the animals to their knees, ran to his master and knelt before him with his mouth open as though to speak, and a look of wracking anxiety and indecision upon his usually imperturbable countenance.

But a slight motion of his master's hand sent him hurriedly towards the servants' quarters, where he was received by scores of his own kind simply bursting with curiosity, whilst Hahmed silently helped his [illegible] from the palanquin.

She stumbled [illegible] as her feet touched the ground, and bit on a cry as the man's strong hand caught and steadied her as she stood swaying slightly.

"Remove thy veil for I fain would see what winds have blown upon thee!"

The little figure, wrapped in countless yards of the soft purple satin habarah recoiled a step as the words fell with the hiss of icy water upon red hot steel; a little nervous laugh rising like thin vapor on the strained atmosphere.

And she continued with the sharp edge of an approaching nerve storm in her voice.

"Methinks it would be better for him to send his fleetest camel to the [illegible] city, and bid it wait without the house of the Blue Door, wherein are to be found those who, unveiled and unashamed, will come and dance upon the sand before such men as — yon camel driver."

Deep purple rings made the eyes seem twice their size, the nose looked pinched, the mouth slightly twisted, whilst great drops from the damp brow fell upon the silk covering she held heaped up around her.

"Allah!" ejaculated Hahmed as he looked and looked again. "Methinks the winds have been ill which have blown upon thee. Thou lookest stricken unto death, and I know not how, but thou hast changed inconceivably; thou art shorter. No! I know not what it is, but hearken.

"Thou hast filled my cup of endurance, O! woman, to the brim. Yea! until the drops of bitterness have overflowed and fallen upon the sands, but now thou art come back, rather than let thee go I would drive this dagger through thy heart.

"Fear not that I will pass uncalled the silken hangings of thy chamber, or force upon thee the sweet title of wife which against my wish thou hast so long disdained, but thou art my prisoner. If love could not bind thee to me, then shall care be taken that thou strayest not again from my home.

"Thy body woman has orders to come to thee only when I command her to do so, though such is her love for thee that she beats her shrivelled body in despair at thy absence, and is like to die for weariness of thy empty chamber. So when thou wilt retire, if perchance the silken ribbon of thy raiment has become knotted, there are no hands but these to the unravelling of the mysteries of thy toilet.

"If thou hast need for me, thou needest but call me, and I will speed to thy bidding, for behold! I will lay across thy portal, as I have lain these many moons since thy nest has been without the bird for whom it was my pleasure to build."

MRS. HATFIELD SABINA, OHIO

In Pitiable Condition When She Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sabina, Ohio.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and irregularity. I was weak and nervous and could hardly stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal. I was this way for about a year and had tried several medicines and had a physician, but to no avail. My sister was taking your medicine and finally induced me to try it. I now feel fine and can do my housework without any trouble at all. You can use this letter for the sake of others if you wish." — Mrs. WELDON G. HATFIELD, R. R. 3, Sabina, Ohio.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so weak and nervous that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken when you first notice such symptoms as nervousness, backache, weakness and irregularity. It will help you and prevent more serious trouble.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Is Grandmother's Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

Making History.

INFANT MORTALITY in past ages has been something frightful, something almost beyond belief, and even today it occupies the time and the mind of leading physicians in all countries. The death rate among infants is being gradually reduced through new methods of hygiene, new preventatives and new remedies for infants. This reduction in the death rate has NOT been accomplished by adapting the precautions taken and remedies used by adults. Rather has it been to keep clear of the old methods, and choose after long research the precautions and remedies specifically applicable to infants.

This being so, is it necessary for us to caution mothers against trying to give her baby relief with a remedy that she would use for herself? Will she remember that Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for infants and children?

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Of Course You Love Your Baby.

You love it because of its very helplessness, because it can't tell you what is the matter when it feels bad. It can only cry and look to you for help. But the more you love baby, the more you want to help baby, the more you ought to realize what a wonderful remedy Fletcher's Castoria is. It has been used for babies' ailments for over thirty years.

An experienced doctor discovered Fletcher's Castoria especially for babies' use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Doctors who know what is safe and best for babies have only good to say of it.

Don't neglect your baby. Get a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria and give baby a few doses of it. See how the little one smiles at you as if trying to thank you for helping it. Soon you will learn to depend on Fletcher's Castoria, made just for Infants and Children, and of course you would not think of using anything for them that was not prepared especially for Infants and Children. So keep it in the house.

Reassured by Dawson, however, she plunges into her work, dreaming of the day she will be his partner. Mary goes to see the parade of the returning Yankee Division and meets PAT SULLIVAN, her childhood sweetheart. JACK MAHONEY, a young millionaire, declares his love for her. Pat takes Mary riding and she realizes she loves him only. She receives a letter of proposal from Mahoney and answers it with a refusal. Pat has a row with Dawson. Mary sits for her portrait to Allan Bruce. Dawson insults her at his house and Mrs. Dawson orders her out. She receives a letter from Pat telling her he loves her. She gets a new job.

I HAD gone to the studio after that Saturday when I fainted. I expected to see Bruce packing and instead he had a great piece of canvas stretched on a frame. Roughly blocked out was the figure of a young girl.

"See, what you did for me, Mona Lisa! I sent you down to be framed and to keep you safe in the art gallery until I returned. Another man saw you and loved you. He sent his daughter here to be made in your image and likeness. It can't be done. Her eyes are vacancy. This is the first order for a portrait I've had in years."

"There will be hundreds."

He shook his head. "I'm only staying until—" his eyes arrogant, reckless, challenged me. I didn't like him in this mood. "Oh, I'm going in a few weeks, I guess."

"I will be all alone," I said, more to myself than to him.

"You could have worse company than loneliness, Mona," he said seriously, shifting at once to banter. "And you will have worse! You'll have me. I'm going to take you with me."

When I went home that night I began to long for June. She was so well poised, so breezy. Now that she was married and happy, I could talk. She and Angelo had gone from their honeymoon on a business trip through the Southwest. They were gone nearly seven weeks. They were coming home. I looked for June to stand between me and the loneliness that seemed to be pushing me toward Allan Bruce.

Something greater, more heart-holding than June's homecoming was to do this.

They had taken a flat. One Saturday afternoon Delia and I went up to hang the curtains, the pictures and to see that the stove was set up. Delia's husband, Jim, came in to help us.

Ma was coming over to plant geraniums in the window boxes. The bell rang.

"There she is!" Mary ran to the door. It was Gracie and Delia's oldest girl. They held each other's hands, their eyes popping out of their heads.

A moment, helpless, unable to move, Delia and I leaned on the banister.

"Ma!" Delia sobbed, clinging to me. "Oh, God!"

"Get the doctor quick, Delia. Phone for him. Then come!"

"Ma." I was at her knees. She reached out her little hand, but she didn't speak. Her breath came in short, quick gasps, then a long heave, a pause, her mouth was a heavy blue line. I grabbed up a paper and began fanning her. Then I got the drops the doctor had given us and the ammonia bottle. I kept fanning her, holding the ammonia to her nose. Her nostrils quivered. Gradually a little color came into her face, that had been so pasty it frightened me. Then she smiled up at me.

"I'm all right." Her eyes closed, then opened, looking at me curiously. "Where's your hat?" she asked.

Those were the days of agony after that Saturday. Ma stayed in bed, propped with pillows, insisting that she was "all right"; she was just taking a rest. But Delia would meet me in the hall and press her face against my shoulder; dad would come into the kitchen, a look in his eyes that smote the heart with its living anguish.

At night Gracie would cuddle next to me, flinging her arms around my neck, crying, begging me to tell her that mamma wasn't going to die. I didn't know how to comfort her.

I didn't want to go to work Monday, but we would need the money. Delia came to take care of ma.

"Don't worry about me, dear," Ma said as I kissed her good by. "I'm having a nice little rest." She pulled down the sleeves of dad's heavy woolen shirt that the doctor had ordered her to wear. "I don't look very nice for a sick lady, do I?" she laughed naively.

For the first time I was late getting to the office. Brand wasn't around.

He had been promising me a raise to $150 a month. My work had been almost without errors. The three days of that week spoiled my chances. Wednesday afternoon he called me into his little glassed off room.

"I can't understand this, Miss Kelly, your work is falling off," he showed me a letter. In four different places I had written 'dead' for 'deal' and not once had I been aware of the error. "You know I hoped to give you a raise, please try and do better."

"Don't worry about me, dear," said Ma.

I took the sheets and went back to my desk, the words running in a blur before me. I began twice, [illegible] time spoiling the paper. Brand was standing before me.

"There is some one at the phone for you," he said impatiently. We were not supposed to have anyone ring us up.

It was Delia.

"Don't be frightened, Mary," sobs choked her voice. "She's all right now, but you ought to come home. She had another spell."

I held on to the phone trying to get sounds from my throat, but the words refused to come. I hung up, went to the dressing room for my hat and coat.

"My mother is sick. I have to go home," I said to Brand, turning hurriedly to hide the tears that were running down my cheeks.

"Oh, oh," he shuffled uneasily. "I'm sorry. Shall I send some one with you?"

"No, thanks."

"Stay as long as necessary, Miss Kelly. We'll keep the place open for you. Your pay will go on. In a time like this—"

"Thanks, thanks." I ran out of the office, half stumbling down the hall.

The doctor's car was at our house. He was coming out as I got there.

"Poor little girl," he said, shaking my hand.

I gripped his arm, trying to speak, to ask.

"Oh, I can't bear it. We'll not let her die. We won't!"

"You will bear it. You must. Other people's mothers have died."

"Not like her. Not like ours. None of them, none of them. We won't let her go! You'll have to save her!"

"Don't go in now, Mary. It might alarm her to see you home."

"We ought to wire June," I said. "She'd never forgive it—"

I sat at the window listening for her voice that sometimes came through the partitions. I would hear ma talking to Delia. It seemed a terrible thing to be sitting out there feather stitching if we weren't going to have her so very long.

At last it was nearly 5 o'clock. The jacket was finished. I brought it to her. But her eyes were very sad. The pretty thing had come too late and she knew it. It made no difference to her now.

"No, she looks better today."

[illegible] we were sure we would keep her with us. We wouldn't admit that she must go. One morning dad came in and knelt by her bed, kissed her and buried his face against her arm. She patted his rough hair, laughing a little at him. "Aren't you tired of kissing me yet, Robert?" He got up, his face stricken, and stumbled out of the room.

Ma's lips quivered, her sweet eyes filled with tears. "Won't he be the poor broken fellow when I'm gone, Mary?"

Oh, for the touch of a vanished hand
And the sound of a voice that is

"When is June coming, Mary?"

"Tomorrow, darling."

Ma looked so delicate, so pretty, leaning against the pillows.

"Tomorrow? Read me the postal."

"You didn't tell her, did you, Mary?"

"I said you were sick. She'll be here tomorrow, maybe tonight."

"Mother! Mother, darling! You feel better! You are better."

I watched her, prayed, fooled myself that each day she looked more natural, more like herself. Mary had gone home to rest an hour. I was covetous of every moment alone with ma. She stirred, opened her eyes again.

"How many days till Christmas, Mary?"

"Five."

"Five? I thought it was only three. Are the wreaths faded?"

"No, darling. Do you want to see them?"

She shook her head. "Don't take them down. They look so cheery from the street. Show me your gifts, Mary. Did you buy them at the end of the month sale in November?" I brought the box to her room.

I turned away crying. "You're giving up, ma! You're not going. The doctor said you are better. Yesterday was the crisis!"

"What did you get for him, Mary?"

"Just what I wanted him to get! How could you afford it? You didn't take more of your suit money?"

"No, I got it half-price. See, there's a little faded streak, but he'll never notice it."

"It's just what he needs. Won't he be pleased!"

Then I had a little signet ring for Gracie—it was the third Christmas she had asked for one—a silver pie knife for June, a line centre-piece for Delia and toys for her children.

For ma I had a new waist, a pair of suede gloves and a leather shopping bag.

She opened the bag, looking at the fittings, the mirror, the little purse.

"They're beautiful, Mary, beautiful. You're too extravagant. My children have been good," she said simply. "I want you to wear the waist because I asked you to. The gloves will fit June. Give the bag to Delia."

I sank on my knees beside her, pressing my face in her little hands, holding fast to her. After a while I got up.

"You'll be here for Christmas, ma," I told her, and I believed it. We couldn't see her failing—dad nor Delia nor I. Hope blinded us.

But that night the doctor came in and stayed quite a while. She had another sinking spell, lying almost lifeless, her eyes rolling, her face that ghastly yellow white, her mouth blue. Then she rallied.

Dad sat beside her, fanning her, his head bowed.

"Not much longer," the doctor said as I went with him to the door. "She is dying. Call the family together. She may not last till the morning."

"Dying? I thought she was getting better."

Dying—the finality of that word, the relentless cruelty of it! I went into the parlor, closed the door and pulled ma's little rocker into a corner, sitting there in the dark, holding my hands together.

"Ma is dying," I said to myself. "We can't hold her. She is going."

"She is out there now—tomorrow she may not be there." I covered my face, borne down, beaten by the terrible helplessness—the tragic futility of fighting against death.

She told us how she wanted us to spend Christmas. We were to go on just as though she were with us. Half the night she lay there, talking every now and then, as though she were only going on a little trip and would return to us. She would drop into a little sleep. Toward morning she started suddenly.

"Has June come yet?" she asked anxiously.

"Not yet, darling."

"I'm afraid she'll be too late, Mary. My poor girl! Tell her all I said, Mary."

Then she slept peacefully, an hour, two, three. It seemed to me I could see a rosy color spreading to her cheeks. And I hoped again. She woke up, and looked, in a startled, frightened way, about the room. The doctor had come in and was sitting in the corner.

"Is Robert there?" she asked.

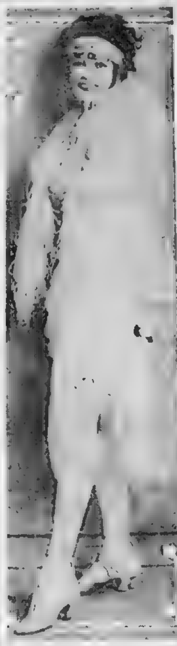
A LITTLE CIVIL ENGINEERING AT B. U.! JOHN Burke and Phyllis Wolfe are freshmen at Boston University and as such must suffer the ignominy of initiation at the hands of the sophs. This gentle couple are engaged in the arduous but interesting task of measuring Boylston street with two ham sandwiches. Phyllis says bricks are now her Rosary.



THERE'S NO REASON for milady getting the cold shoulder with this charming evening cape, direct from London. The garment is fashioned of blue silk, set off by a dyed marabou collar and edged with ostrich plumes of a like hue. The delicate knickers are of blue satin with floral trimmings. Satin, particularly the lighter shades, has come into great popularity this Fall.

GROUP OF THE HOMELESS! GIRLS GUARDING household property saved from flames at Newport. Miss Martha Codman of Boston threw open her home to the shelterless. Other Bellevue residents did the same.

SALLY COULTER, pretty Boston girl, who will descend into the "black hole" of the Convict Ship "Success" and remain there 25 hours.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Things change quickly, don't they?

A short while ago there was little coal to move. Now there is more than can be moved.

It is not so long since the railways were complaining about the meagerness of traffic. Now they are congested.

Non-employment was worrying the whole country not so many months ago. The worry is now over present and prospective scarcity of labor.

The steel industry was quite recently in the pauper stage. It has now orders for more products than there are railway cars to handle.

Automobile manufacturers were for months so stampeded that they were far behind in deliveries. We now see occasional price cuts which would suggest that times have changed.

Earlier in the year wages were coming down and there were numerous predictions that they would go much lower. The wage trend today is distinctly upward.

Investment houses a little while ago couldn't get enough new offerings of securities to go around. There are no complaints of scarcity of supplies—at least of a kind—nowadays.

Money rates were to go down and down. They have been going up—and may continue to do so.

Several primary elections caused something of a panic among the conservatives—radicalism was on the rampage. Since then Massachusetts and other States have swung toward conservatism.

Only a few weeks ago the financial world was lying awake o'nights over bonus legislation. The bill has since been killed.

Queer kinds of money were being so loudly championed by Ford, by Edison and by others of less note that responsible financial and business interests were beginning to become scared. Today such clamor has died down.

The coal strike, which threatened to be unending, is over.

There was talk of the railway strike developing into a general strike of all railway employes. The railway strike is now petering out.

Until a few weeks ago Germany was the centre of international nervousness. At this moment German affairs have been completely overshadowed by the sensational military successes of Turkey.

Early this week alarmists were drawing blood curdling pictures of a Europe overrun by Turks and Russians. Now the talk all is of conferences and compromise.

Austria for months has been headed for something approaching extinction. Yesterday's cables announced that the Allies have definitely arranged a very large loan to put this unhappy state on its feet.

Going a little further back, Bolshevism threatened the established things all over the world. The king-pins of the Bolshevists, in Russia, are rapidly forsaking communism and returning to the ways of capitalism.

• • •

Name L. H. Colby

Lester H. Colby has been appointed manager of the waste department of the American Woolen Company, succeeding Herbert Taylor, who has resigned.

Boston Notes

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS—Remember, we were expecting ugly sessions and we are getting them, but do not lose faith in the bull market because it has not ended.

AMERICAN SMELTING & Refining Co. has advanced price of lead from 6.25 cents to 6.35 cents.

LEHIGH VALLEY is believed to have accumulated a large hidden surplus, so that real value of its property is probably fully twice the fundded debt.

CHICAGO & NORTHWESTERN is expected to earn both dividends this year with a substantial margin to spare.

NEW RIVER COMPANY wage scale is practically at war peak for miners. The company can show substantial earnings as soon as its car supply permits output of 150,000 to 175,000 tons a month.

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR has reduced its losses due to rejection of imperfect blades from as high as 60 per cent. to 5½ to 5 per cent.

U. S. SMELTING coal output in year's first eight months was 757,732 tons as compared with 514,620 in the like period last year. Production is expected to be increased largely for rest of year.

SMELTING COMMON'S advance more than makes up for recession on Tuesday. This movement followed more mature consideration of company's earnings statement for first eight months of the year when net for common ran at rate of nearly $4 a share for a full year.

ALASKA-JUNEAU Gold Mining Co. report for first eight months of 1922 shows profit on its 1,400,000 shares ($10 par) for the first time since 1914. Earnings of August and June were sufficiently large to overcome deficits in other six months of the year.

MOST LOSSES IN SETBACK ARE FRACTIONS

Prices were irregular on the New York Stock Exchange with a heavy tone. Oils led the forenoon drop and then led in the recovery. Most losses in the setbacks were for fractions.

There were, however, 1 to 2-point recessions in American Car & Foundry, Beth Steel B, Gulf States Steel, Corn Products, Famous Players, Lackawanna Steel, Iron Products, Phillips Pete, Republic Steel and Vanadium.

In late trading United States Steel was up better than a point as the rally grew brisk.

Point to 2-point gains were made in Baldwin, American Woolen, American Locomotive, Lima Loco, Columbia Gas, Crucible and United States Rubber.

Mexican Pete moved in both directions over a range of about 5 points.

The market was sensitive to professional selling in the early afternoon. Weakness of Republic and Bethlehem Steels, coupled with the rise in money from 4¾ to 5 per cent., caused increased offerings under which many shares sagged from below the top figures of the morning. Scattered liquidation of miscellaneous shares was in evidence.

International Harvester sold 3¼ points under Wednesday's final figures, Certainteed Products 3⅜ and Retail Stores, Allied Chemical, Sears, Roebuck and Western Union 1 to 1½.

Standard Oils Keep Up Gains on Curb

A feature of the New York Curb market was trading in Brooklyn City Railroad stock. More than 6,000 shares changed hands in the first half of the day, when the stock moved up to 10¼, highest price since the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company was placed in the receiver's hands.

Standard Oil issues continued influenced by current reports of a coming distribution of surplus and readjustment of capitalization. Standard Oil of New York moved up during the forenoon from 523 to 535. Vacuum Oil also made a vigorous advance and Magnolia moved up over 15 points.

LIBERTYS IMPROVE IN BOND MARKET

Prices of Liberty Bonds improved in New York bond dealings, but the rest of the list was reactionary. Foreign bonds continued to reflect weakness of foreign exchange. Seine 7s, United Kingdom 5½s of 1937, Japanese 4s, French 7½s, Marseilles 6s and Denmark 8s lost ground while slight improvement was noted in Dominion of Canada 5s of 1931 and Belgian 8s.

CONSOLIDATED GAS DIVIDEND HIGHER

Boston Consolidated Gas Co. directors have declared a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent., payable September 29 to stock of record September 23. Company has been paying 1¾ per cent. quarterly.

Wall St. Gossip

PRINCE & WHITELEY—While the market continues unsettled the best policy to pursue is to buy only on weak spots and take profits on rallies.

A. A. HOUSMAN & CO.—News from the Near East is so contradictory and so unofficial that it cannot reasonably be used as a basis for either buying or selling.

THOMSON & McKINNON—The bulges that we have had have been the result of the covering and short commitments made by the professional element.

F. B. KEECH & CO.—Hold to standard dividend-paying stocks, and buy further on any material drop.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—We are approaching the time to buy stocks to hold and for trading, but it has not yet appeared.

BALDWIN Locomotive Works is operating at 60 per cent. capacity, largest rate since March of last year, with business holding up well.

GENERAL MOTORS earnings in year's first seven months are said to have been about $31,000,000, or $1.60 a share. Company is reported in position to retire liabilities with millions to spare.

MEXICAN PETE shorts were rounded up to accompaniment of a report that President Doheny was about to make another of his periodic statements concerning the marvelous asset value of his company.

COMMITTEE ON securities of Stock Exchange rules transactions in Chesapeake & Ohio shall be ex-rights September 28. Right to subscribe expires October 2.

PLANS FOR proposed merger of Midvale, Republic and Inland companies may be modified to conform with the Federal Trade Commission's view.

THIRD AVENUE RAILWAY income report for August shows a surplus of $25,240 against a deficit of $23,182 in 1921.

PRESIDENT GRACE of Bethlehem Steel Co. confirms despatches that a twenty-year contract for carriage of iron ore from Chile to Sparrows Point had been closed with Axel Brostrom & Sons of Gothenburg.

132nd Dividend

The regular quarterly dividend of two dollars and twenty-five cents per share will be paid on Monday, October 16, 1922, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Wednesday, September 20, 1922.

H. BLAIR-SMITH, Treasurer.

Coal Loadings Are at Highest Mark in Months

Association of Railway Executives reports coal loadings for the week ended September 23 totaled 212,110 cars, a new high since April 1, when the miners' strike began. This exceeded the preceding week's fillings by 16,968 cars, and on the basis of this production in the past week approximated 11,500,000 tons, of which about 9,750,000 tons was bituminous and 1,750,000 anthracite.

Merchandise and miscellaneous freight loadings in the previous week totaled 945,919 cars, the highest since October 22, 1921, the association also announced. This total exceeded the second week of the current month by 113,175 cars and was 14,321 cars in excess of the week ended September 2. Loadings were 93,367 cars above the same week of 1921 and 45,247 less than in 1920.

Replies to Investors

Queries of interest to investors will be answered in this column or by mail. Address questions with stamped and self-addressed envelope, to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Timken Roller Bearing.

To R. A. D., Lynnfield.—Timken Roller Bearing made its bow on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday; $30 is the price at which it was recently offered for public subscription. Since the stock was placed on the market it sold ex-dividend 75 cents a share. Earnings in the current quarter will approximate $2,500,000 after charges and taxes, which, with $4,095,630 earned in the first half, will bring nine months' total to approximately $6,600,000, equal to $5.50 a share on 1,200,000 shares of no par stock.

For the full year profits are expected to exceed $8,250,000, or nearly $7 a share more than twice the current annual dividend requirements of $3 a share.

SIGN INQUIRIES.

To L. D., Lowell—To you and to others I call attention to the fact that inquiries to this column must be signed as evidence of good faith. I cannot reply to anonymous letters.

GOODYEAR TIRE.

To P. P., Cohasset—There is no news which should induce you to sell your Goodyear Tire & Rubber at this time. I advise strongly against a shift to the curb copper you name.

On June 30 last the Goodyear had net current assets of $65,511,157 and only $6,223,554 of current liabilities. Working capital was, therefore, $59,287,603. This sum is equal to 120 for the $28,500,000 first mortgage 8s (all of these bonds must be redeemed at 120) and a little less than par for the $27,500,000 debenture 8s. It leaves entirely out of the reckoning plants and properties carried at $52,000,000. Furthermore, it does not include Goodyear's interest, amounting to nearly $16,000,000, in the net current assets of subsidiaries.

The earnings of Goodyear for the six months to June 30 last, after charging out premium on the first mortgage 8s and substantial sums for bond discount and reorganization expense, totaled $1,915,890, equal to 6.4 per cent. on the prior preference stock for the period or a rate of 12.8 per cent. per annum. Dividends have accrued on this issue from January 1, 1921.

Good for Fitzgerald!

Ex-Mayor Exhibits Real Democracy and Real Statesmanship in Democratic Convention

We congratulate Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, Democratic nominee for Governor, upon his exhibition of real democracy and real statesmanship in the Democratic Convention held at Springfield the other day. He urged the Democratic reiteration of its faith in public ownership and operation of the public utilities and declared that he had made it a part of his platform, and that it had been endorsed by the Democratic voters and by the great majority which he had received in the primaries.

It was no discredit to him that the politicians who controlled the convention were willing to repudiate the public ownership plank. The only reason that they did not repudiate the Initiative and Referendum is that the Initiative and Referendum has already become a part of our Constitution with no thanks whatever to the men who prevented the Democratic Convention from being true to its traditions.

Mr. Fitzgerald can console himself with the fact that he is right and with the fact that this convention did not represent in that act the will of a majority of the Democratic party. He can also console himself with the fact that he stands in the line of progress, facing its direction with the courage to utter and to expound and defend the truth. No man ever went without reward who stood four square with fundamental principles.

"Will Be Plenty of Coal"

If Statement of Officials Is Correct, There Is No Excuse for Raising Price of Fuel

John L. Lewis is president of the United Mine Workers of America. The United Mine Workers of America are composed of men who dig the coal out of the bowels of the earth and carry it to the earth's surface and place it on the cars for transportation to the furnaces and stoves where it is to be burned.

Mr. Lewis captained this organization through the great strike till it ended favorably to the miners.

Speaking of the scarcity of coal, he says:

> There will be plenty of coal within two or three weeks. The American miners are loyal to the public interests. They produce three times as much coal a day as other miners of the world. The outlook is good.

Phillip J. Murray, vice-president of the same organization, says:

> If there is not plenty of coal it will not be the fault of the miners. They will work faithfully and diligently to produce the coal.

Let it be remembered that our own Fuel Commissioner, Mr. Hultman, told us a few weeks ago that there was not a great shortage of either soft or hard coal, that the greatest shortage could easily be made up in two weeks if the strike should stop within two weeks of the day of his statement. The strike stopped within that period and if he is correct in his figures the total demand for coal ought to be supplied before it is time to start our furnace fires. Some of our railroad managers also join with Mr. Lewis in the statement that there will be no shortage of coal.

Under these circumstances there ought to be no toleration of any increase in the price of coal. We cannot allow coal dealers and mine owners to use this strike as an excuse for practicing extortion on the general public.

Freight Differentials

New England Should Wake Up to the Importance of the Hearing in Washington October 3

We hope our New England community and especially our metropolitan district will be alive to the very important hearing which is to take place on the 3rd of October next in Washington on the question of New England differentials.

For years beyond memory the ports of New England have received a certain relative differential freight rate between these New England ports and the chief centres of freight distribution in the Middle West, like Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City. In all those years nobody ever complained that New England was receiving any more than her desserts.

Suddenly one day the ports of Baltimore, Philadelphia and New Orleans demanded a certain freight rate which would take away from New England the division of freight rates which she always enjoyed. The demand was granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission upon what we believe to be a very faulty notion of the facts and the economics involved in the question.

This decision has done us an immense harm, for it has transferred from us hundreds of millions of tons of goods.

We have asked for a rehearing. Millions and millions of dollars representing New England prosperity depend upon the decision at that hearing. We hope that everyone who represents New England will be on the qui vive to do his best in the presentation of this case.

Bad for New England

We are very sorry that the New Haven Railroad is unable to reach terms with its shopmen. This is bad news to New England. We had supposed that it would be quite possible for the New Haven officials and the officials of the shopmen's organization to reach an amicable agreement.

We still cannot understand why the New Haven should be out in the cold, why New England should suffer from a constantly deteriorating railroad equipment when the rest of the country has resumed "normalcy."

William and Bill

Editor Boston American:

Can somebody give me a pointer on men? I am half in love with two men. One is a Bill. The other is a William. Bill is big and rough. William is a gentleman. All of my girl friends like William better than they do Bill. His manners are perfect and he never forgets those subtle, delicate attentions that are so comforting to a woman's heart. But, somehow, I think that he pays too much attention to clothes and manners and women, and not enough to work. I wonder if he is capable of a single love. Bill doesn't do all of the nice things, such as helping me from a cab, sending flowers and candy, writing letters when away and telephoning every day. But how like a worker, a protector and a man he seems. William had invited the two of us to lunch one day. The waiter was rude. William didn't seem to know what to do. I sort of suspected he was timid. Bill just gently took that waiter by the hand and twisted his fingers. I was mighty proud then. But afterwards I wondered. "If Bill would beat a waiter for so small a thing, what would he do to his wife? Perhaps somebody who has married a Bill or a William can advise me. William makes more money than Bill. Bill works harder.

Wife Gets Too Much

Editor Boston American:

The trouble with Mr. White is that he gives his wife too much money. No housewife should be trusted with more than enough to pay the bills (and then she could make up a weekly budget for her husband to watch) and about two dollars a week for spending money. Money ruins women. I've had a sad experience and my wife was a pretty tractable woman before I began turning over the weekly envelope, less my own expense money. A man should buy his wife's clothes. Let her pick them out, but he should decide how much he may afford to pay for them.

ROGER P.

Night Telephones

Editor Boston American:

What is the matter with the night telephone service? Some of the time I cannot get the operator to answer my telephone at all. It is unlimited service. Then I step out to a drug store and drop a nickel and get service at once. Are they trying to discourage subscribers?

JOHN D.

Child Labor

Editor Boston American:

Since the child labor law was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court, many boys and girls have been taken from the schools and put back in the mines, mills and factories, to work longer hours at harder tasks than their young bodies are able to stand and still retain their youthful vigor.

This law was squashed on the argument of "States rights." By this decision and a similar former one, Congress cannot legislate to save the children from being marred and maimed in mills and factories. On the other hand, a State cannot protect her men from being ground up in a world war.

Reasoning thus, one would conclude that the child is the property of the State and the man is the property of the nation, for, when the nation conscripts the man into the army, the State is helpless, and when the State conscripts the child into the mills the national government is helpless. There seems to be an inconsistency here that would now be hard to correct.

EDWARD R. GOODWIN.
Roxbury.

Poorly Dressed, Well Loved

Editor Boston American:

White was a fool. No woman can save money, especially a young and giddy wife. My income would be considered very big by the average family, yet I give my wife $35 a week and she is compelled to pay all household expenses and her own bills. The way to keep a wife is to keep her poorly dressed and well loved. They value attention more than money. My will gives my estate to my wife after death and I do not care whether she marries again or not. Nor do I care whether she spends my money on her new husband. I don't think she will. She's learned the value of money. Don't print my name.

Who Has a New Baby?

Editor Boston American:

We have a baby's bath tub and a baby carriage that have been moulding away in the attic. It is twenty years since our child used them and now he has gone out into the world. Is there any reader of the Boston American who might be able to put these to good use?

MRS. G.

Ed. Note—This column will be glad to send the address of the above writer to any one interested.

Fair Proposition

Editor Boston American:

I am creditably informed that there are six Scotch regiments in the Free State army, yet victory turns to the Irish republic. The Republican army that is defending the constitutional republic in Ireland has succeeded in making the treaty and Free State unworkable. The Free States were never established and can never be established. There is no civil war in Ireland. The Republicans are fighting the British, who are still ruling through Dublin Castle. The Free State army is equipped by England and led by English officers. All the chivalry is on the side of the Republican soldiers, who represent the best and most intelligent class of Irishmen. What are the Republicans looking for? De Valera says: "Recognize Ireland as an independent sovereign unity and we will make any treaty as regards the naval power and control of the sea by England; any treaty except the surrender of Ireland's right to be a nation." This is a fair proposition if England wants to be fair.

From Away Back

Editor Boston American:

In your columns recently was an article from one who signed himself a Real True American From Away Back. I believe he must be from away back and that is where he should stay. If the truth were known he is probably a Real True Englishman or Newfoundlander who is making a good living here in the land of plenty. He refers to the Boston American as a dirty sheet because it is the one and only paper in circulation today that is absolutely unbiased and judges persons by what they are and not what they believe and practice in a religious way. I might add that I am a one hundred per cent. American myself and my grandparents on one side were English and that is the only part of my ancestry that I have cause to be ashamed of.

A. H. LAWRENCE.

Pool Room Gambling

Editor Boston American:

Gambling of the pool room nature may not exist in a community without the knowledge of (1) the landlord, (2) the telephone company, over whose wires the bets are placed, (3) the authorities vested with police power in charge of the community. Personally, I am inclined to doubt that Boston's gamblers have been driven out.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

YOU are sympathetic if born today, and intuitive in your relations with others. You attract people to you by sheer force of personality and you hold them by your complete psychic understanding of their characters and lives.

Today is one of splendid outlook for all projects of a social nature such as entertainments, public meetings, etc.

Your ensuing year will be one of alternate hopes and despairs, but nothing will happen to you which will be either as gloomy and rosy as you foresee it.

A child born today will be affectionate and responsive, but rather vague and careless in manners and habits.

DO YOU WELCOME CHANCES TO HELP OTHERS?

If you have made a success along some line and have learned by hard knocks some of the shoals to be avoided, why not be manly and human enough to give some other man the benefit of your knowledge and experience?

Why be so self-centred?

Do you ever stop to think how little you have done, ever, in this world?

Think it over.

How many persons have you aided, in any way?

What have you done for any one rather than your wife and family, whom the law says that you should love and cherish and protect?

Mighty few deeds of this sort stand to your credit. Isn't it true?

The gross debt outstanding for the Suffolk County Courthouse in Boston was $1,996,000 on February 1, 1921.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE new traffic rules making Adams street, Dorchester, a one-way street from Granite avenue has aroused a storm of protest from auto drivers, who claim that Adams street in this section down to King square is one of the worst highways in the entire city.

MRS. THOMAS WARREN, an admirer of animals, can be seen almost daily standing before a large oak on Boston Common, near Boylston street, whistling to her favorite squirrel, whose headquarters are up in that tree. The squirrel knows that whistle and comes chasing down the bark to get his dainties. Mrs. Warren has a number of pets in her own home, but the Boston Common squirrel is not forgotten.

HUGH PENDEXTER, the novelist, who does most of his writing at Norway, Me., tells a story of one of his relatives now holding a high position with the Cambria Steel Works. The relative, as a boy, broke the bottom of a jug while getting water from a lake. Instead of returning to camp empty handed, he filled the jug, carefully fitted the broken parts together and inserted the stopper. Suction did the rest. When the man who received the jug pulled out the stopper the jug collapsed. "The boy couldn't be blamed, as he wasn't within ten feet when the accident happened," concluded Mr. Pendexter.

English sparrows are fast becoming extinct. Once upon a time one might walk up by KING'S CHAPEL and see flocks of them, but alas, they are no more. The automobile is said to be the cause of their scarcity, in that horses formerly scattered oats about, on which they lived.

Everett is now ready to take its place among the religious cities of Massachusetts. Twenty-two young men have left their home town this Fall to study for the priesthood. And the most curious thing about it is that they are all studying for the same order, namely, the Josephites.

When Hudson street, South End, was made a one-way street one of the best things that could ever be done for that district happened. During the six months previous to the one-way street regime, twenty-four children were killed at the different intersections on that street. Since then not one casualty has occurred.

A pastor sixty-eight years on the job at $1 a day! Sounds improbable, but it's true, according to annals of the old parsonage at Newington, N. H. The minister was REV. JOSEPH ADAMS, uncle of the second President of the United States. His parish, when he started it, consisted of but nine members, but when he was called from his labors it was larger than most ministers of the present day can boast.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON SKY WONDERS

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE following letter from Mr. J. E. Savage of New York furnishes, I think, a good example of the general indifference of people to phenomena in the heavens, and, at the same time, is an interesting indication of the need of a critical attitude of the mind toward any extraordinary appearance noticed in the clouds or the sky, if its real nature and significance are to be understood.

"On Saturday evening (Aug. 19), at sunset, I witnessed a remarkable spectacle in the sky. In the east sable and vermillion clouds, topped by heavier purples and blues, were of a hue and texture of surpassing beauty, duplicated again in the west, where a remarkable contrast was offered the sunset reds by an emerald green band directly above the horizon.

"Through these beautiful colors, cutting a swath through even the heavy clouds, ran a tremendous path entirely across the sky, marking, apparently, the transit of the sun across the heavens. It was dark blue in color, and wonderfully well defined, and could under no circumstances be mistaken for a cloud formation.

"In about two hours it faded, and night-time closed in on the most awe-inspiring spectacle I have ever beheld. Was that blue band, apparently carved out by the sun, the mysterious zodiacal light? I believe I was the only one among hundreds on the beach at that time who noticed anything unusual in the sky."

The zodiacal light has no resemblance to the phenomenon described, and could have no connection with it. The light is seen only after the twilight begins to deepen; it glows with a very soft radiance, is of a faint silvery, or sometimes slightly golden tint, and has the form of a long narrow wedge, point upward, with base covering the part of the horizon where the sun set.

The source of this light, whatever it may be, lies far beyond the atmosphere of the earth. The light is probably due to reflected sunshine coming from a disk of meteoric or nebulous matter of slight density surrounding the sun and extending many millions of miles away from it.

The dark blue "swath cutting through even the heavy clouds," and making "a tremendous path entirely across the sky," had little to do with the transit of the sun across the heavens. Its dark hue and its appearance of making a path through the colored clouds, indicate that it was a shadow cast by some dense cloud interposed in the way of the sunlight, and falling upon the clouds that it seemed to pass through.

It was analogous, evidently, to the shafts of light and interposed lanes of shade seen in a display of "the sun drawing water."

The hundreds described as paying no attention to so remarkable a spectacle were evidently of the sort who "having eyes to see, see not," i. e., they see nothing whose appeal is addressed solely to the sense of beauty or of awe, regardless of application to ordinary human affairs. There is probably less than one person among a hundred aware of the fact that the spectacle of sunset is not comprised entirely in the display of colors in the west, but that a connected series of changes of light, color and shadow occur in the eastern heavens.

But the full value of Nature's spectacles, and especially their intellectual influence, can only be availed of by learning as much as possible of their laws and their interrelations. It is not true that science destroys the poetry of Nature; on the contrary, it enhances it.

Taking the Long Green Away From the Soldiers Was No Fair Way to Do

Well, President Harding has refused to sign the Bonus Bill but very few of the soldiers will know it. Most of them haven't got a nickel to buy a paper.

The soldiers don't need the money anyway. If there's another war in Europe the government will pay their way over there.

The Bonus Bill asked for too much money. He might have signed it if he could have paid the soldiers in lost golf balls.

The President may not be very good at putting, but his veto will put many an ex-service man in a hole.

Taking the long green away from the soldiers was no fair way to do.

One doughboy said as soon as he got his bonus money he was going to celebrate by taking his grandchildren to dinner.

Thousands of soldiers are out of work and it looks like they'll have to wait until the next war before they can get another job.

Every soldier answered as soon as he heard the call, but somebody will have to bugle awfully loud the next time.

You've got to admit that it's a wonderful thing the way the soldiers went out and fought for millionaires they'd never met.

Of course some of the soldiers were lucky, they were fighting in the New Zealand ranks.

The men who framed the Bonus Bill made a great mistake. They should have introduced it to Congress in 1917 while the boys were marching to war.

Some of these soldiers were badly wounded in battle, but their memory hasn't been hurt.
